ALLIES PUSH INLAND THIRTEEN MILES

Canadians Smash Way Forward After Beachhead Battle

Advance After Two Hours, 45 Minutes of Fighting—Stiff Tussle in Town Streets

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES LANDING IN FRANCE, June 6 (CP).—In two hours and 45 minutes' fighting on the beaches here Canadian invasion forces won their beachhead and shoved on inland.

At 10:45 o'clock this morning the Canadian commander sent this message to Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, army commander: "Beachhead taken. Well on way to immediate objective."

The strip of coast won by the Canadians in this initial assault was quite narrow, but it gave them beaches and provided a base for further penetration.

There was some stiff street fighting in the little coastal towns and the Canadians also met considerable enemy fire on the beaches, and as they worked their way into the German defences they had to overcome numerous steel and wooden obstacles which had been placed out on a tidal part of the beach.

However, the assault went in just as the tide began to rise, and many of these obstacles were cleared away by Engineers before water covered them, enabling follow-up craft to beach and unload.

GOING STRONG BY 10 A.M.

By 10 a.m. the Canadians were about 1,000 yards inland and going strong, meeting only small pockets of Germans.

The first prisoners taken were identified as belonging to a coastal defence unit.

On other parts of the front near us the operation is moving along. Canadian and British airborne troops did a good job when they dropped and came in by gliders at 3:30 a.m. They captured and held several important bridges.

Cruisers provided the Canadians with very effective support. One cruiser knocked out a troublesome battery about a mile and a half from the coast with six direct hits.

Enemy tanks are reported about 10 or 15 miles south of the beach-

From Europe Day by Day—

THE TIMES, London

News and Comment on International Events selected from The Times daily and published in The Daily Colonist by special arrangement with The Vancouver Daily Province.

(Copyright, 1944, by Southam Co.)

LONDON, June 6.—Waves of profound relief, eager hope and keen expectation swept over Britain today when officials gave out news the greatest air, sea and land invasion in history had been launched.

"At last it has come," said everybody, who, month by month, week by week, ever since February last, had been expecting every week-end to bring them the fateful news that hundreds of thousands of their husbands, fathers and sons would be hurled in battle against the Fortress of Europe, reputed to be the most deadly defended ever known.

Now that historic "D" Day has come, the nation looks back upon the preparations for it, extending over two and a half years since the second front was first publicly agitated for, and believes its work and sacrifices during that long, laborious time well worth while.

Today and for many months to come that work will be tested in the fire of battle. It has involved production of machinery for warfare in unparalelled scale. All Britain has been a vast factory for four years.

It had turned out secret new weapons in large numbers, provided warships, aircraft, guns and equipment at a rate undreamed of five years ago, trained splendid young men for the mechanized army keen as a razor for action and provided it with leadership tried and tested by modern warfare.

Hardly for an hour during the last 14 weeks have sirens ceased to shriek warning in German, French, Belgian and Dutch cities.

Germans in Italy Flee

Swarm Over Tiber In Many Places

NAPLES, June 6 (AP).—Remnants of the German army fled in disorder north and west of Rome today as Fifth Army troops, swarming over the historic Tiber in many places, advanced another five miles farther north in Italy.

But in the mountains east of Rome, Nazi rearguards presented strong opposition against the British Eighth Army in an attempt to cover the northward withdrawal of the German main body in that sector.

The enemy resisted Eighth Army troops in the hills north of the Via Casilina but some mountain positions in that sector have been abandoned by the Germans, the communique said.

The Canadian Corps was believed out of the line for a rest.

To the northeast, 15 miles from Rome, French troops have captured Tivoli on the important Avezzano road (Highway 5).

Whatever hope Nazi Field Marshal Gen. Kesselring might have had of establishing a strong defence line anywhere south of the Northern Apennine Range, guarding the Po Valley, undoubtedly suffered a sharp blow when the Allied armies struck in Northern France.

Enemy divisions still in the flatlands southwest of Rome were in desperate straits. Westward from Rome to the sea all the Tiber's bridges have been blown up or have been captured by the Allies, and in the coastal area alone well over 2,000 Nazis apparently will be unable to extricate themselves.

Papers Drop "Ads" For Invasion News

NEW YORK, June 6 (AP).—The New York Daily News, The New York Daily Mirror and The New York Herald Tribune appeared without advertisements in tonight's editions to make room for full invasion coverage without increasing the number of pages during the paper shortage.

Reinforcements Stream Ashore to Aid Invaders

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 7 (Wednesday) (AP).—Allied troops swiftly cleared Normandy beaches of the dazed Nazi survivors of a punishing sea and air bombardment and armor-packed landing parties ranged inland today in a liberation invasion which the Germans themselves predicted would expand. Reinforcements streamed across the white-capped Channel.

Some reports reached here that Gen. Montgomery's men had cut at Caen the Paris-Cherbourg railway, a main route supplying Hitler's defence forces in the Cherbourg peninsula. The German High Command, however, claimed that no Allied troops had penetrated Caen.

The German radio, in a dawn broadcast, said the Allies had made "further landings at the mouth of the Orne under cover of naval artillery" and that heavy fighting was raging on the coast.

The German Transocean Agency said today in a Berlin broadcast that fierce German counter-attacks had been launched against Allied invasion troops east of Cherbourg.

Just after midnight, the agency continued, strong German bomber formations attacked Allied warships and landing craft off the bay of the Seine and north of Le Havre. "Details are purposely kept back as yet, but results were good," the agency claimed.

Prime Minister Churchill first disclosed that Allied troops were fighting in Caen, on the River Orne, nine miles inland, a hub of roads and railways radiating all over Northern Normandy. He said the invasion was proceeding "in a thoroughly satisfactory manner" and with unexpectedly light casualties.

Returning R.A.F. pilots said: "We could easily tell the beaches were secure—we could see our soldiers standing up."

Caen was the only point specifically named here as a scene of fighting, although penetrations as deep as 13 miles were reported.

Nazi-controlled radios, however, reported Allied landings at a dozen points, with the most important on both sides of the estuary of the River Orne.

From west to east along the 100-mile shoreline, Axis accounts said Allied sea-borne and air-borne forces struck at:

The port of Barfleur, 15 miles east of Cherbourg; the fishing village of St. Vaast la Hougue, five miles south of Barfleur; both sides of the Valognes-Carentan highway, a section of an important supply road to Cherbourg running five miles inland from the peninsular coast; the 27-mile-long area between Carentan and Bayeux; the River Orne estuary; a 15-mile stretch of beaches in the Villers-Trouville region across the Seine Estuary from Le Havre, and the town of Honfleur, on the Seine six miles southeast of Le Havre.

Channel weather was adverse, a strong northeaster kicking up the waves. But this was not permitted to halt the stream of reinforcements and supplies for the forces hacking out positions along a 100-mile front between Cherbourg and Le Havre.

The German radio expressed fear of further landings. Fresh and strong naval forces were reported sighted this morning off the Dunkerque-Calais area, opposite Dover and some 200 miles airline northeast of Cherbourg.

The Nazi-controlled Paris radio said "an important American-British naval squadron was cruising off Cherbourg two hours after midnight."

Gen. Eisenhower, supreme commander, was confident of success in the great land, sea and air blow, launched before dawn Tuesday under a screen of bombs and shells from 4,000 warships and 11,000 aircraft.

The Allied High Command disclosed that more than 1,000 troop-carrying aircraft, including gliders, bore fighting specialists on invasion missions and said this phase was executed with "unexpected success." Allied bulldozers lashed out coastal landing strips.

Quell Fire From Shore

Churchill Declares Operation Satisfactory

LONDON, June 6 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill said tonight that Allied troops have penetrated in some cases several miles inland from the coast of France, and that "This operation is proceeding in a thoroughly satisfactory manner" with losses far less than anticipated.

In his second statement to the House of Commons on this "D" Day, Mr. Churchill said he had been at centres where the latest information was received, and reported that "the passage of the sea has been made with far less loss than we apprehended."

He said it appeared tactical surprise had been achieved over the Germans as the Allies established lodgments "on a broad front."

"The resistance of batteries has been greatly weakened by the bombing of the air force, and the superior bombardment of our ships greatly reduced their fire to dimensions which did not affect the problem," he said, adding that "airborne troops are well established and the follow-ups all are proceeding with very much less loss than we expected."

After visiting headquarters of Gen. D. Eisenhower with The King, Mr. Churchill described those airborne landings as "an outstanding feat on a scale far larger than anything there has been so far in the world. These landings took place with extremely little loss and great accuracy."

"Many dangers and difficulties which appeared at this time last night extremely formidable are behind us," Mr. Churchill said.

"All this, of course, although very valuable, is a first and vitally essential step and gives no indication whatever of what may be the course of the battle in the next days and weeks, because the enemy will now probably endeavor to concentrate on this area.

NOW ENTERING UPON MOST SERIOUS TIME

"In that event heavy fighting will soon begin and will continue. It is therefore a most serious time that we are entering upon and we enter upon it with our great allies all in

Sixth Hour, Sixth Day, Sixth Month

DENVER, June 6 (AP).—Numerology students cited today that the invasion of Western Europe started at the sixth hour of the sixth day of the sixth month—6 a.m. London time, June 6—while firing in the First Great War ceased at the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month—November 11, 1918.

Prayers Urged By His Majesty

LONDON, June 6 (CP).—The King tonight called upon his subjects to offer up "Earnest and continuous and widespread prayer throughout the present crisis of the liberation of Europe."

Prayer, he said, would fortify the "determination of our sailors, soldiers and airmen who go forth to set captives free."

"At this historic moment surely not one of us is too busy, too young or too old to play their part in the nationwide, perchance worldwide, vigil of prayer as the great crusade sets forth," the King said in a B.B.C. broadcast.

"After nearly five years of toil and suffering we must renew that crusading impulse on which we entered the war and met its darkest hour. We and our Allies are sure that our fight is against evil and for a world in which goodness and honor may be the foundation of life of men in every land.

"That we may be worthily matched with this new summons of destiny, I desire solemnly to call my people to prayer and dedication.

"We are not unmindful of our shortcomings of the past and present. We shall not ask that God may do our will but that we may be enabled to do the will of God; and we dare to believe that God has used our nation and empire as an instrument for fulfilling His high purpose."

Urges French to Aid

OTTAWA, June 6 (CP).—Fisheries Minister Bertrand, in a short wave broadcast to France today, called on all Frenchmen to aid the invading Allied armies which were beginning the liberation of France. Mr. Bertrand urged the French people to follow the instructions broadcast from Britain.

British Warships Three to One

LONDON, June 6 (CP).—The proportion of warships in the Allied invasion naval armada was three British to one American, and the overall proportion, including landing craft, was three British to two American, a British naval commentator disclosed today.

"There was a big Canadian contribution, as well as many Norwegian, Polish, Netherlands, French and Greek ships," he said.

4,000 Warships in Great Bombardment

LONDON, June 6 (CP).—The massed might of 4,000 Allied warships thundered a prelude to invasion, blasting the German defences along the West Wall Monday so swarms of waiting landing craft could close in for the assault.

One task force was under Rear Admiral Sir Philip Vian, hero of the rescue of British prisoners from the German "hell ship" Altmark in 1940. Admiral Vian, who commanded a "carrier force in the Salerno landing last October, flew his flag Monday in the cruiser H.M.S. Scylla which also figured in the Salerno landing.

Rear Admiral Alan Goodrich Kirk of the United States Navy, commander of the other task forces, watched operations from his flagship, the cruiser Augusta.

The naval forces were under the over-all command of Admiral Sir Bertram Ramsay, who marshalled the 3,200 ships that carried the Allies to Sicily.

His job this time was to put back into France the men and thousands of others he had rescued during Dunkerque.

The British section of his fleet alone loosed a tornado of fire west of Le Havre, pouring 2,000 tons of shells every ten minutes with 600 ships firing everything from our 16-inchers, surprising and stunning shore batteries whose return fire was sporadic.

As the first wave of assault troops touched shore and fanned up the beach, the battleships and cruisers steamed on ahead to drench other sections of the coast with destruction.

The bombing was so closely timed to keep the Germans off balance that bombs crashed down just three minutes ahead of the landing infantry. Field batteries, trench mortars and possibly flame throwers went up in smoke among the sand dunes.

"There was a big Canadian contribution as well as many Norwegian, Polish, Netherlands, French and Greek ships," a British naval commentator said of the naval armada.

1,000 Troop Planes In Aerial Invasion

LONDON, June 7 (Wednesday) (AP).—Supreme Headquarters announced today that more than 1,000 troop-carrying aircraft delivered the largest air-borne force in history into France yesterday as other Allied planes in the war's greatest air operation ruled not only the invasion beaches but also far inland.

The aerial phase of the invasion saw 10,000 tons of bombs crash down, clearing the way for the ground troops. The attacking planes which swept through French skies found that only 50 German planes had come up to meet them.

"Continuous fighter cover was maintained over the beaches and for some distance inland, and over naval operations in the Channel," the Supreme Headquarters communique said. R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. night raiders protected the troop-carrier force, which included gliders, and reconnaissance aircraft maintained a day and night watch over shipping and ground forces.

In all, the Allies made more than 7,500 sorties between midnight and 8 a.m. yesterday. Prime Minister Churchill told Parliament that an armada of 11,000 first-line planes sustained the assault.

Scores of United States heavy bombers conducted the first American raid of the war from their new bases in Russia yesterday, showering tons of high explosives and incendiary bombs on an airdrome at Galati, a Romanian city on the Lower Danube River. The planes were escorted by both Soviet and American fighters.

A communique issued at a Russian air base said that six enemy interceptors were shot down and two American flyers had not yet returned. An Associated Press dispatch from the base also quoted returning American bomber and fighter pilots on the results of the SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 7 (CP).—Allied forces continued their landings on the Northern Coast of France throughout yesterday and "satisfactory progress" was made, a communique from S.H.A.E.F. said today.

Headquarters announced that new airborne attacks were made last night and that the "whole airborne operation is going according to or ahead of plan."

NEW YORK, June 7 (Wednesday) (AP).—The B.B.C., in a broadcast heard by the Blue Network, said this morning that "another Allied airborne landing south of Cherbourg has been reported." The source of the report was not indicated.

LONDON, June 7 (Wednesday) (CP).—The Canadian group of the R.A.F. Bomber Command set a new group record during the night with an all-out pounding of military targets in France.

LONDON, June 7 (Wednesday) (CP).—Allied aircraft thundered across Dover Strait today in the direction of the French coast to lend support to invasion forces battling their way inland against German defences.

The planes roared over the coast just as the sun broke through rain clouds blanketing the strait.

LONDON, June 7 (Wednesday) (CP).—Prime Minister Churchill promised a new statement in Commons today on overnight developments in the Allied invasion of France.

LONDON, June 7 (Wednesday) (CP).—The Nazi-controlled Paris radio said at 2 a.m. (7 p.m., C.D.T.) that "an important American-British naval squadron was cruising off Cherbourg."

AT AN R.C.A.F. STATION SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, June 7 (Wednesday) (CP).—Canadian fighter pilots back from their first sorties of the second day over the invasion beaches of Northern France reported that "things generally are going well" on the Allied-held stretches of Europe's shore.

LONDON, June 6 (CP-Reuter's).—The Turkish Home Radio Service, quoting the Berlin radio, said tonight that at noon today Allied motorized troops landed at Patras in Greece. Earlier, the Sofia radio had reported extensive Allied air activity over Greece. The Berlin radio assertion was not heard by any British listening service.

Use Even War Correspondents To Deceive Nazis on "D-Day"

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE INVASION FORCES, June 6 (CP) Cable.—Even the Allied war correspondents were used in the pre-invasion schemes to deceive the Germans as to the time of landing on the Continent.

In early May groups of us were given mysterious orders to pack kit and report to an army headquarters in London for an assignment. We checked out of hotels, gave up flats and rooms, and many figured that D-Day was just about here. But it was a phoney move to accustom Fleet Street to seeing the correspondents come and go.

At headquarters we were told we were being used in the deception plan and that we would be going to an isolated camp for a week before returning to London. So away we went to the station and crowded to the train with our war correspondent flashes on our sleeves for everyone to see, and burdened with operational kit it was made to look very obvious that something probably was going to happen in a military way.

An officer with us looked over the people in the station who curiously watched us get on the train, and said: "I wonder if there is anybody in that crowd who is going to report this to Berlin. We certainly hope they do." And he laughed.

We returned to London while other correspondents went off "on dry runs" as they were dubbed. Bill Stewart of The Canadian Press, went south for a week and Allan Nickleson, accredited to the Royal Canadian Navy, was called out of town for a couple of days. He went to a port and spent a day with other naval correspondents aboard warships.

In London you lived under mounting tension, the waiting was getting on everyone's nerves. You made a great effort to find diversions to keep our minds off invasion and the backfiring war of nerves.

Canadians like Ralph Allen, of The Toronto Globe and Mail; J. A. M. Cook, of The Winnipeg Free Press, and Fred Griffin, of The Toronto Star, haunted Lords cricket grounds sitting in the sun watching the week-end matches or made daily trips to greyhound tracks. In the hotel at night they talked endlessly about cricket and dogs. They had found the best diversion of all.

We kept stalling around London trying to do the routine jobs. You could feel "D-day" creeping up, as the Italian campaign surged to a climax and the bombing offensive shook the continent. Louis Hunter, of The Canadian Press, was called by the R.C.A.F. and went to a fighter base in England where he prepared to write the big air story.

We were ordered to pack field kit again and leave it at our London headquarters. This looked like the final move. Then, on the morning of May 30, I got a phone call before 9 o'clock: "Pack your remaining pieces of kit and report at our headquarters by 4 p.m. today," said a Canadian public relations officer.

The waiting was over. This was it.

From Europe

Each 24 hours has brought its story of havoc, wrought to the enemy communications, and the Germans have taken to shipping to carry supplies. Aerial torpedoes and rocket projectiles have littered the narrow seas from Heligoland to the Bay of Biscay with wrecks. There is no question but that the Huns' invasion defences have been crippled in some places by the might of the Allied air assault.

Moreover, the once all-powerful German war machine has been reduced to the defensive. No longer can it strike back in might and power against its foes' own territories. It has as much as it can do to defend what it has already won.

Nevertheless, no one should imagine the Allies do not face terrific bloody and deadly struggle from today onwards as the Germans have built defences along 1,000 miles of sea coast.

These are 30 miles deep. One hundred thousand men have worked on them nearly two years—forced labor under threat of concentration camp.

The Atlantic Wall comprises not only heavily fortified ports and harbors, but also a continuous system of beach defences such as the Canadians encountered at Dieppe.

Altogether there may be a million men held in readiness to meet the Allied landing.

While British people have greeted the opening of the great struggle for liberation of the Continent with the accustomed calm—London's half-empty streets and centres of public resort show not the smallest sign of excitement and even the newspaper offices are tranquil—tension inside Germany has become highly charged.

This is not surprising seeing that as far back as last September, Nazi commentators, especially in France, were announcing the invasion imminent. Ever since then the German radio, especially week-ends, has been fixing dates and even Rommel himself publicly forecast "D" Day May 6, adding reassurance to the German people. "Our preparations are complete."

Well, attacks have been launched now, and the world will not have long to wait before the extent of its success is apparent. How far and fast the Allies will go, no power on earth can foretell. Up to the moment of cabling, indications are good. But in war, especially modern, scientific war, the unexpected is always what happens.

Without giving away any military secrets, it can be said that the Allies task in broad outline is, first, to establish their bridgeheads where they have landed; secondly, bring even more and more reinforcements across the narrow seas to smash the Atlantic Wall from front and rear, and, thirdly, push on into enemy-held territory with all the speed and might at their command. The fact that the landing area in Northern France contains dozens of the finest bathing beaches in Europe facilitates the first phase of opening.

Superiority on sea and in air assures that reinforcements will get away from Britain as required.

And the Allies' magnificent war equipment, to which Premier Churchill has just alluded, should give speed necessary for a blitzkrieg that should outdo the enemy in what was once his weapon of victory.

Premier Churchill got an ovation of his life when he told the good news to Commons. It was the anniversary of the Germans crossing the River Somme in 1940, heralding their approach to Normandy where the Allies are now fighting.

CONSERVATIVE MEETING

The executive of Saanich Progressive Conservative Association will meet at 2847 Austin Avenue at 8 o'clock next Friday night.

R.C.N. Naval Commandos Land With First Wave

NAVAL Commandos, including those of the Royal Canadian Navy, were scheduled to land on the invasion coast with the first wave of attacking troops, and signal the remainder of the assault in. They help organize the beach for the landing of troop and material-bearing craft and maintain close contact with the assault flotilla offshore. The men shown above may have been those who paved the way for the infantry aboard the two well-known Victoria ships, H.M.C.S. Prince Henry and H.M.C.S. Prince David, which took part in landing operations on the French coast as infantry-assault ships.

Ten Germans Are Main Bulwark of Nazi Europe

One Admiral and Nine Generals To Pit Wits Against Allied Team

By JOHN HETHERINGTON
(North American Newspaper Alliance)

John Hetherington, well-known Australian newspaper man, has been covering the war almost since the start. He was with the Australians training in the Near East early in the war, and covered the British Eighth Army's retreat and counter-offensive across North Africa.

LONDON, June 6.—Ten Germans are the main buttresses of the Nazi-fabricated Atlantic wall which the Allied forces attacked when the invasion of Europe began this morning. One admiral, five army generals, three Luftwaffe generals and one Schutzstaeffel general are the Nazi anti-invasion chiefs who will pit their wits, resources and battle experience against the Allied team of Eisenhower, Montgomery, Tedder, Ramsay, Fraser, Spaatz, Bradley and the rest.

The German High Command has chosen its Atlantic Wall leaders without regard to any considerations except their fitness for the tasks allotted to them. Five of them are ardent Nazis and at least one is a follower of Hitler for reasons of ambition; one always almost ostentatiously, avoided affiliation with the Nazi party, and the remaining three never bothered to conceal their dislike of Nazism and the Nazi leaders.

However, even the most biased critics do not deny that each member of the German team is outstandingly able in his own line. And in at least one respect all are identical: each conducts warfare with the remorselessness that always has been typical of the German military leadership.

At 68, Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt, supreme commander-in Western Europe, is physically tall, spare and straight, mentally alert, cool and vigorous. He has been a soldier for 51 years and today is the oldest German general in active service.

Von Rundstedt had a distinguished career on the general staff in World War I and has won brilliant personal successes in this war in Poland, the Low Countries, France and Russia. His lightning push in the Ukraine in the Summer of 1941 has been described as "possibly the most flawless operation in this war." No wonder the Germans dubbed him "the high priest of strategy." He is completely ruthless. After the Allied commando raid at Boulogne he court-martialed and sentenced to death 150 German officers and men, not only, it is said, for cowardice but also for "technical errors committed under fire."

VON RUNDSTEDT AN ARISTOCRAT

Von Rundstedt, scion of an aristocratic army family, never embraced Nazism and was once marked down on Himmler's secret list among the "politically unreliable" generals. Nevertheless, he is completely loyal to the fatherland and though he is anti-British he consistently urged Germany not to embroil herself against England in armed conflict.

The two main army groups under Von Rundsted's supreme command will be led by two men whose backgrounds could hardly be more dissimilar—Field Marshal Johannes von Blaskowitz and Field Marshal Erwin Eugen Johannes Rommel.

Rommel is a Nazi to the core: Von Blaskowitz is a Reichswehr, traditionalist. Rommel came from a pure Wurttemberg family and in spite of his unquestioned ability could never in the old class-ridden German Imperial Army have reached the heights he has attained today.

Von Blaskowitz, who served in World War I as a junior officer, belongs to an aristocratic family and could hardly have avoided military preferment. He led the German forces which occupied Austria and Czecho-Slovakia and commanded the army group which captured Warsaw. Later he fell into disfavor with the Gestapo and remained in eclipse until September, 1942, when he was reported leading the German land forces in Italy.

The task of preparing the Low Countries to resist the Allied ground invasion falls on two men whose antecedents and temperaments differ as widely as do those of Rommel and Von Blaskowitz. They are Luftwaffe General Friedrich Christian Christiansen, military commander in Holland, and General Alexander von Falkenhausen, military commander in Belgium.

Christiansen, thick-set and ruddy-faced, started life as a ship's cabin boy, became a merchant sea captain and served in World War I as a pilot in the naval air arm. He is an ardent Nazi and did more than any other man to organize and develop the National Socialist Flying Corps which was designed to awaken air consciousness in German youth, train boys for the Luftwaffe and to inculcate Nazi beliefs among the pilots.

ARROGANCE OF TRADITIONAL JUNKER

Baron von Falkenhausen represents the apotheosis of the German officer class. His aristocratic features—thin-lipped mouth and cold eyes looking through rimless spectacles—suggest all the arrogance of the traditional junker. Like Von Rundstedt, he does not conceal his dislike of the Nazi party; but also as with Von Rundstedt, the Reich comes first, no matter who rules.

General Nikolaus von Falkenhorst, who bears the engaging title of "chief in command of army and navy air forces of the Reich for the protection of the neutrality of Denmark and Norway," is another product of Germany's military class. Now 58, Von Falkenhorst served in France in World War I and in Poland in this war.

Von Falkenhorst has always managed to steer clear of political entanglements, but he is completely pitiless in compelling collaboration by the peoples of the occupied countries. When he was sent to Norway in September, 1941, he issued two curt orders to the populace: "Any civilian carrying arms will be shot" and "any civilian guilty of sabotage will be shot."

Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, commander-in-chief of the German High Seas Fleet—the man who rashly boasted, "I will show that the U-boat alone can win this war"—has the task of devising naval counters in the invasion. Doenitz joined the Nazi party more as a means of furthering his naval ambitions than because he was politically interested. Crafty and patient, Doenitz secretly planned and established the framework of a new U-boat fleet in defiance of the Versailles Treaty until Germany's rising power enabled him to come out in the open and complete the work.

The Germans have acknowledged that the Allies will have air superiority above the invasion battlefields. Two of Germany's ablest air chiefs share the burden of drawing up the plans to blunt the edge of the Allied air weapon. They are the fat-lish, monocled, 59-year-old Luftwaffe field marshal, Otto Sperrle, commander of the Luftwaffe in Western Europe, and lean-faced, 32-year-old Luftwaffe general Adolf Galland, inspector-general of German fighter forces.

COMMANDED NAZI LEGION IN SPAIN

Sperrle commanded the Nazi Condor Legion which fought for Franco in the Spanish civil war; Galland fought there as a member of the Condor Legion. Sperrle was a bomber pilot in the first Great War. He helped to plan the Nazi blitz against Britain in this war, including the insensate attacks on Coventry and other cities. Admiring Germans labelled him "the hero of Bath and Norwich."

Galland, Germany's youngest major-general, joined the Wehrmacht as an infantry officer in 1935. Earlier he had been a test pilot while Germany was secretly developing combat aircraft. He transferred to the Luftwaffe in 1936 and after his taste of air warfare in Spain commanded the Messerschmitt Squadron in Poland in 1939. He is credited with having shot down more than 100 Allied planes by 1942 when he took over the supreme command of the German fighter forces.

Galland is acknowledged to be a brilliant fighter pilot and a fine technician. Like many Germans of his age he is a fanatical Nazi. He has even grown a mustache modelled on Hitler's.

Uprisings in support of the Allies along the invasion coasts may cause serious problems for the Germans. General Sepp Dietrich—a tall, broad-shouldered 52-year-old former waiter in Bavaria—commands the S.S. formations which will endeavor to curb the patriot forces. He is one of Germany's foremost experts in the art of civil warfare and street fighting, with a record of having punched, blackjacked and shot his way to high Nazi rank. He was one of Hitler's three personal gunmen and reputedly shot Ernst Roehm on the "night of long knives" in 1934. Also, he is credited with having carried out hundreds of other secret death sentences at the behest of his Fuehrer.

These, then, are Hitler's anti-invasion chiefs. Tough men indeed—but so are their opponents.

Hon. Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit Association of Canada, will address members of Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council tonight at 802 Broughton Street.

Anti-Invasion Chief

Opposing General Eisenhower is Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt, 68, supreme commander of Germany's anti-invasion forces in the West. Rundstedt is a veteran of the Polish, French and Russian fronts. He was a general staff officer during World War I.

Allied Invasion Preparations for Invasion on Staggering Scale

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY INVASION FORCES, June 6 (CP).—Week by week until "D-Day," Allied invasion preparations were shaped on a staggering scale against a back drop of suspense and anticipation on the part of forces and civilians in Britain and jittery German nerves.

Never before had a military operation been so heralded by both sides as this second front.

The enemy, as the time grew closer, frantically flew kites of rumors and speculation. But London, Washington and Ottawa told nothing of importance.

Still the prelude to the greatest military drama of all time was a nerve-wracking time for those who were crossing the Channel and those who were at the giant bases. The tension of waiting was just as tough on the civilian in Britain for there were few families who didn't send someone with the invading troops.

Since the start of the year those who had been in Britain and with army formations have been able to see the steps forward in the invasion plan.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander of the Allied invasion armies, and Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery, commander of the British invasion armies, came back from the Mediterranean and their staffs began to take shape.

"Cossac"—chiefs of staff, supreme Allied command—was the first main headquarters for second front planning. By February it was secondary to supreme headquarters, Allied expeditionary force, focal point for invasion preparations. In mid-March, Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar returned to London from Italy to take command of the Canadian Army. Troops were beginning to concentrate then.

COAST PRACTICE ZONE FOR COMBINED OPERATIONS

The coast again became a practice zone for combined operations and a dozen times or more large fleets of landing craft, escorted by Royal Navy fighting ships, sailed out for a day or two at a time and concluded the sorties by landing British, American or Canadian troops on English beaches.

Never before had Britain so many fighting men within her borders. A standing joke was: "If they bring one more soldier to Britain this island is going to sink."

Behind this veneer of silence immense events took place. In early April all army, navy and air force leaves were cancelled indefinitely. Nothing about this was announced. Camps were jammed with all their men and service women.

War correspondents were prohibited from writing anything but the most innocuous stories about invasion preparations. At April's end Allied correspondents were accredited to S.H.A.E.F. and given instructions to be ready. That was the only indication from any official source that the time was getting short.

The King inspected every formation in the Canadian force here and went around to all the British divisions. These Royal inspections are customary when troops are leaving the country and these visits are really of a farewell and good luck nature although nothing like that was said.

Security even prevented the King mentioning the invasion to his troops.

The air blitz grew from day to day. Staffs in big headquarters of the Allied commanders kept at their work. Canadian headquarters bustled with activity. New equipment flooded to the combat units.

One secret meeting after another was held at headquarters with guards with fixed bayonets watching the entrances. It was the final stage of the planning.

The German Air Force stepped up their reconnaissance toward the end of April and there were several sharp night raids. Then the Canadian and certain British formations prepared to go to sea on a final rehearsal. This was the biggest manoeuvre of all and it was carried out in more secrecy than any other beachhead area "considerably widened."

Woman Beaten

McBRIDE, B.C., June 6 (CP).—Mrs. Laura Renshaw, 81, of Loos, B.C., is convalescing in hospital here from the effects of a severe beating allegedly inflicted by Norman Ducharme, 39, formerly of Winnipeg.

Ducharme, alleged to have beaten the elderly woman while she was in a Canadian National Railways station waiting room at nearby Loos, was yesterday remanded until next Tuesday on a charge of occasioning bodily harm. Mrs. Renshaw suffered from bruises and shock after Ducharme allegedly beat her about the head and kicked her in the ribs. No reason was given for the attack, police said.

Courtenay Men Knew Secrets

WITH CANADIAN FORCES LANDING IN FRANCE, June 6 (CP).—Khaki closeups:

The first promotion in the field among officers in the Canadian forces went to Lieut. Danny Osborne, of Winnipeg, who was informed at sea that he had been made a captain. Formerly a transport officer in a service battalion unit, he recently was appointed to formation headquarters staff. His captaincy had been pending some time.

A small group of formation headquarters N.C.O.'s and privates who did clerical work during six months of extensive staff planning knew the second front targets and all the secrets. They even knew them long before many colonels and brigadiers.

Among those who were "in the know" all this time was C.S.M. J. H. Pratt, North Battleford, Sask., and Sgt. Jimmy Harrison, Saint John.

Orderlies who did the duplicating, the dispatching of orders and plans and also knew all the secrets were Pte. Frank Stapley and Charlie Letts, both of Courtenay, B.C.

The first Canadian army officer to win the George Medal, Major Doug Cunnington, of Calgary, is with an assault engineer formation. He won the medal early in the war when he helped remove an unexploded bomb from a Spitfire factory bombed by the Germans. Before coming to the field formation, Cunnington was personal assistant to Lieut.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former commander of the First Canadian Army.

Reinforcements

Naval casualties were officially regarded as "very light."

Allied air forces maintained their missions despite the wind. The United States 9th Air Force alone flew 4,000 sorties yesterday. Clearing the way for ground troops 10,000 tons of explosives crashed down upon the German positions from the air, among them some described in a field dispatch as "huge bombs of a mysterious type."

A British naval officer, who accompanied the task forces, said the Supreme Command was "still worried about the weather" and that there had been much seasickness among the invasion forces. The wind over the Channel grew stronger during the night.

The German High Command in a special late communique said that "fighting in the Cherbourg-Le Havre area is in full swing. South of Le Havre strong air-borne units have been annihilated. New enemy operations must be expected but have not taken shape yet. Fighting is extremely fierce everywhere as the Anglo-Americans are putting up a most tenacious resistance."

GERMANS ADMIT BEACHHEAD WIDENED

"It must be admitted," said the Nazi-controlled Vichy radio, "that the Allied beachhead area has been considerably widened and that Allied reinforcements are pouring in."

There were indications that the Germans were losing touch with their battle groups and that they were not sure where the main force of the Allied assault was striking.

At a late hour last night hundreds of Allied planes still were in the air, guarding the convoys and the beachheads and striking beyond the zone of operations to paralyze Nazi defence positions and communications.

During the first day of the assault Allied airmen reported that French women stepped from their doorways to wave at them as they sped overhead.

The first of the Allied wounded were returned to England. Despite injuries, many were smiling and cheerful.

Headquarters officers, reticent about the progress of sea landings, expressed themselves as more than satisfied with the air-borne attack, contradicting a German High Command claim shortly after midnight that the defenders had annihilated strong air-borne units.

The Germans expressed fear of additional operations and said "fresh and strong naval units approached the Calais-Dunkerque area northeast of the Normandy bridgehead this morning."

"Under cover of heavy naval guns, the Allies are bringing up fresh troops," said a D.N.B. dispatch broadcast from Berlin.

The German agency said Allied parachute troops landed between Carentan and Bayeux, 27 miles apart in the western zone of operations, "as well as air-borne and sea-borne troops, have been driven back in very heavy fighting."

A Berlin broadcast said that "a strong formation" of Allied parachute troops had gained lodgments on both sides of the road from Carentan to Valognes, a highway junction point 11 miles southeast of Cherbourg.

PUSH 13 MILES ON IN CAEN AREA

A B.B.C. correspondent said Allied forces had pushed 13 miles inland in the Caen area.

Swedish correspondents in Berlin reported that the German High Command expected "new and larger landings" overnight and said the invasion front stretched more than 200 miles from Calais to the Channel Islands. Several divisions were said to be fighting in the big bridgehead, in some cases hand to hand.

A Stockholm dispatch to The Daily Mail said Hitler was expected to speak soon "somewhere in the West," as personal commander of anti-invasion operations.

Ferried across the white-capped Channel by a great armada of 4,000 ships and thousands of lighter craft and screened from above by a thundering fleet of 11,000 Allied warplanes, British, American and Canadian troops hit the beaches along a front of roughly 100 miles between Cherbourg and Le Havre in the first cloudy hours of daylight and swept swiftly inland.

Allied losses in the initial assault were much lighter than had been anticipated, and there was an unmistakable air of optimism at the headquarters of Gen. Eisenhower, Allied commander. It was disclosed "D" Day originally had been set for Monday, but that bad weather forced a day's postponement.

Tonight the International Information Bureau, German propaganda agency, reported the Allies held a bridgehead about 15 miles broad and "several kilometres" deep between Villers and Trouville. Trouville is nine miles directly south across the Seine Estuary from Le Havre.

German reports from the Spanish frontier said Allied troops were in full possession of Honfleur, six miles southeast of Le Havre across the Seine Estuary, and were fanning out south and east toward Pont L'Eveque, Beuzeville and Pont Audemer, ranging from 10 to 15 miles inland.

Prime Minister Churchill announced that Allied air-borne troops had captured several strategic bridges inside France before the enemy could destroy them, and that "there is even fighting proceeding in the town of Caen." Caen is nine miles inland near the base of the Cherbourg Peninsula, west and slightly south of Le Havre.

REPORTS VICIOUS BATTLE RAGING

The German-controlled Paris radio broadcast a "last-minute flash from the battlefield" early tonight, saying that "a vicious battle is raging north of Rouen between powerful Allied paratroop formations and German anti-invasion forces." Rouen is 41 miles from the coast, east of Le Havre.

Parachute and glider-borne troops, who led the history-making attack in thousands of pre-dawn landings deep within the enemy's vaunted defences, suffered "extremely small" losses in the air, Headquarters announced, and sea-borne losses were described as "very, very small."

Nazi coastal defences had been silenced until they offered only sporadic fire and Allied air power completely dominated the battle area. Several of the toughest invasion hurdles had been successfully cleared, but an Allied spokesman warned that "many more remain." Huge Allied reinforcements of men and armor were pouring ashore tonight.

Fixed German guns along the coast were literally blown apart by a 10,000-ton aerial barrage in the eight hours preceding the landings, and then a formidable fleet of British and American warships—including battleships with 16-inch guns—stood close inshore and destroyed enemy bunkers and gun positions with point-blank fire.

Despite a command by Reichsmarshal Goering that the "invasion must be beaten off even if the Luftwaffe perishes," only 50 German planes appeared in the early hours of the attack. Allied fighters ranged 75 miles inland without meeting opposition.

The German radio reported bitter fighting at a half-dozen points in Normandy and claimed to have identified two U.S. air-borne divisions in the Cherbourg Peninsula and two British air-borne divisions in the Seine area near Le Havre.

First to report that the invasion was under way early today, the Nazis speculated that the Normandy assault merely was diversionary in nature and said the invasion troops were "going into an inferno in comparison with which Dante's hell was child's play." The enemy broadcasters said German reinforcements were being rushed to meet the onslaught and that counter-attacks already had been struck.

EXPECT AIR FORCE IN BATTLE SOON

In addition to the heavy counter-attacks expected to be launched by German ground troops within a matter of days or even hours, it also was anticipated that the Nazi Air Force would pitch violently into the battle soon. The Germans are estimated to have probably 1,750 fighters and 500 bombers available for the defence of the West.

Headquarters tonight praised troop carriers of the 9th Air Force for having conducted "very large scale" airborne operations with "very small losses."

"The sky was black with them as they headed for France," said an American fighter pilot. He said a thick overcast up to 7,000 feet might have contributed to keeping the German Air Force on the ground. Other airmen told of seeing Allied ground troops hit the beaches and literally run inland through the shattered enemy defences.

More than 640 Allied naval guns, ranging from four to 16 inches, participated in the pulverizing, bombardment of the Atlantic Wall, the most photographed and publicized belt of defences the world has ever known. Mr. Churchill said the Nazi shore batteries were "largely quelled" before an Allied soldier landed. Only a few enemy destroyers and motor torpedo boats attempted to interfere with the vast Allied fleet.

Preceding the actual invasion fleet across the Channel was a huge armada of little ships—mine sweepers—which swept lanes straight to the designated landing points. The length of sweep wires used to tear loose the moored German mines stretched nearly 70 miles in all—the greatest mine-sweeping job in history. Some of the ships used still are on the secret list.

After the sweepers came the whole flat-bottomed family of landing craft laden with fighting men, guns, tanks, shells, field rations, hypodermics, radio sets, bandages, trucks and the other bewildering baggage of combat.

EISENHOWER WATCHES FROM HOUSE TOP

General Eisenhower, after having personally inspected and wished luck to the unit of airborne troops, watched from a house top somewhere on the English coast as the great spectacle unfolded.

Leading all Allied ground troops in the invasion was General Montgomery, Britain's best known field commander, who whipped Marshal Irwin Rommel on the sands of Africa.

There was no immediate announcement of other Allied commanders, but it was apparent Lt.-Gen. Crerar, who succeeded Lt.-Gen. McNaughton as commander of the First Canadian Army early this year, was leading his men in the attack.

There was no indication where the Canadians are fighting, but Desmond Tighe, of Reuter's News Agency, describing how the British destroyer on which he was aboard lay "8,000 yards off Bernieres Sur Mer," told of watching "tin-hatted British and Canadian troops in that sector, cheerful and smiling, going into attack. Bernieres Sur Mer is about 12 1-2 miles north of Caen.

Normandy, whose broad beaches were chosen by the Allied commanders as offering the best chance of success, forms a natural peninsular pathway into France. The peninsula ranges from 25 to 60 miles wide and is 70 miles long, with the port of Cherbourg at its tip.

Allied penetrations inland would clear all of Normandy, with its many airfield sites, and provide a pathway down the Seine Valley to Paris. Le Havre, 100 airline miles northwest of Paris on the Seine River estuary, is France's second seaport, with 14 ship basins and eight miles of dock.

The German D.N.B. Agency said the invasion began with the dropping of "major airborne formations" between the estuaries of the Seine and the Orne, in the area of Isigny, Caen and near Barfleur at the northeastern tip of the Cherbourg Peninsula.

About two hours after the parachutists dropped, the German agency said, large-scale amphibious operations began on a wide front between Le Havre and Cherbourg, with very strong disembarkments at the small coastal village of St. Vaast La Hougue. It said the landings were made behind thick blankets of artificial fog.

Aerial Invasion

raid, showing that the operation was not of the shuttle type such as was the original landing of the American planes in Russia several days ago after the hammering of Debrecen, Hungary.

The German radio claimed 11 American planes were lost over Roman yesterday and said the raid produced "fierce air battles."

7,500 SORTIES IN EIGHT HOURS

The 7,500 sorties between midnight and 8 a.m. made by Allied aircraft in the west yesterday did not take into account the hail of bombs, rockets and bullets that crashed down upon the French Coast in the hours following.

During the period covered by the report more than 1,000 R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers filled the night with thunder. At dawn the American-Eighth Air Force sent another fleet of more than 1,000 heavies into the air. More than 500 medium bombers and hundreds of British, Canadian and American fighters were out during the same period.

In the light of Reichsmarshal Goering's order of the day, in which he instructed the German Air Force to repel invasion "even if the Luftwaffe perishes," there were only two explanations why the German Air Force did not put up a fight on "D" Day.

One was that the enemy was caught flat-footed without enough planes in France to fight effectively, although it was estimated that the German Air Force had 1,750 fighters and about 500 bombers in the west to meet the Allied thrust.

The other, offered by the Berlin radio, was that "the German fighter arm was extraordinarily handicapped by the extremely bad conditions of visibility on the Channel." This report, heard by C.B.S., said some short and violent air clashes took place in which a number of Allied planes were shot down.

Despite the large-scale air-borne sorties and their extremely vulnerable operations, Allied losses were reported small.

MORE THAN 5,000 TONS OF BOMBS

The R.A.F. Bomber Command threw more than 1,300 aircraft against the enemy's coastal batteries in the darkness preceding the assault, and from 11:30 p.m. Monday night until dawn they sent more than 5,000 tons of bombs cascading on the invasion coast. This was the greatest weight of bombs ever dropped by the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. in one night.

There were well over 1,000 giant Lancasters and Halifaxes engaged in the thundering night prelude to invasion.

The R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers carried out ten attacks, each with 100 or more of the big planes, between 11:30 p.m. and sunrise, while other British aircraft attacked the northwestern German railroad city of Osnabruck without loss.

More than 100 heavyweights from the Canadian Bomber Group, the largest force of any group in Bomber Command, participated, and one plane was lost. Twenty Canadian-built Lancasters, all of which returned safely, were among the raiders.

Then more than 1,000 American heavy bombers took up where the R.A.F. heavies left off, unloading possibly another 3,000 tons of explosives on gun emplacements and other defensive works.

In its first report on general air activity, S.H.A.E.F. described German opposition as "light."

Fighter-bombers attacked railroad and highway bridges, road bottlenecks and coastal batteries in the invasion zone. Some descended to tree-top level and strafed German troops moving by trucks to defence of the beaches.

WIELD KNIVES AND TOMMYGUNS

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 7 (Wednesday) (AP).—The Allies hurled against the Germans in France in Monday's invasion the greatest air-borne force in military history.

A communique disclosed that well over 1,000 troop-carrying planes, including gliders, participated in the air-borne phase of the invasion.

Wielding sheath knives and tommyguns, thousands of British and American paratroops and glider troops swept down on sleeping Cherbourg Peninsula and set about the tasks of disrupting Nazi rear lines by destroying key bridges, rail yards and enemy strongpoints.

At S.H.A.E.F. late Monday a military spokesman said:

"Our losses in aircraft were extremely small. It was a fine job—very fine indeed."

As the air-borne troops are fighting fiercely behind the enemy lines, the spokesman naturally was not in a position to give a detailed picture of the results of their landings, but reports from air observers indicated they created large diversions.

Attack bombers flying back over the area in which the air-borne troops landed reported seeing a number of demolitions and many burning buildings.

Associated Press War Correspondent Gladwin Hill, flying over the landing area shortly after, reported "inland hundreds of parachutes, plopped neatly in fields without a sign of life about, testified eloquently to the alacrity with which their riders plunged into cover to tangle with Germans."

Associated Press Photographer Bede Irwin told of seeing "thousands" of parachutes lying on the ground during a flight across the Cherbourg Peninsula.

"There was also about a 500-acre section packed with gliders," he said. "A number had cracked up, but most seemed to have gotten down okay. From our height I couldn't see any ground movement, but many buildings in the area were burning. There must have been quite a battle."

Victoria and Island Men Had Hand in Invasion Training

WITH THE CANADIAN INVASION FORCES, June 6 (CP).—During their stay in a concentration area before starting on the invasion of Europe, Canadian troops underwent varied training. Medical officers checked the records of the men and renewed inoculations against such diseases as typhus and tetanus.

For street fighting drill, troops in small groups drove several miles after getting lectures on the tricks of the trade. They practised cleaning out houses one by one and concealing themselves behind whatever cover was available. While they trained their mobile equipment and transport was taken away from the camp for waterproofing.

Headquarters personnel of one of the Canadian second front groups before the Canadians invaded Europe included Maj. L. A. G. Rounding, Victoria; Capt. Bob Knechtel, Saskatoon; Capt. Warren Stewart, Winnipeg; Capt. W. H. F. J. Jolly, Penticton, B.C.; Capt. H. D. Knox, Winnipeg; Capt. P. H. Nash, Regina; Capt. G. C. Eckenfelder, Calgary; Capt. D. D. Murphy, Winnipeg, and Lieut. S. Room for Nothing But War Vehicles

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY INVASION TROOPS, June 6 (CP).—The Canadians went through the "sausage machine" just before the invasion of Europe was launched.

The "sausage machine" was the concentration area through which every invasion formation passed to jump-off ports. It was a large area and troops, tanks, vehicles, guns, jeeps and the amphibious ducks crowded the zone in the weeks prior to the attack.

It was one of the most populated areas in all Britain, jammed with British, Canadian and American troops. Soldiers were bivouacked in every field for miles around certain ports. There were thousands of tents in groves and on farms. Vehicles and masses of tanks with Bren carriers, armored cars and guns were parked along the highways and network of country roads.

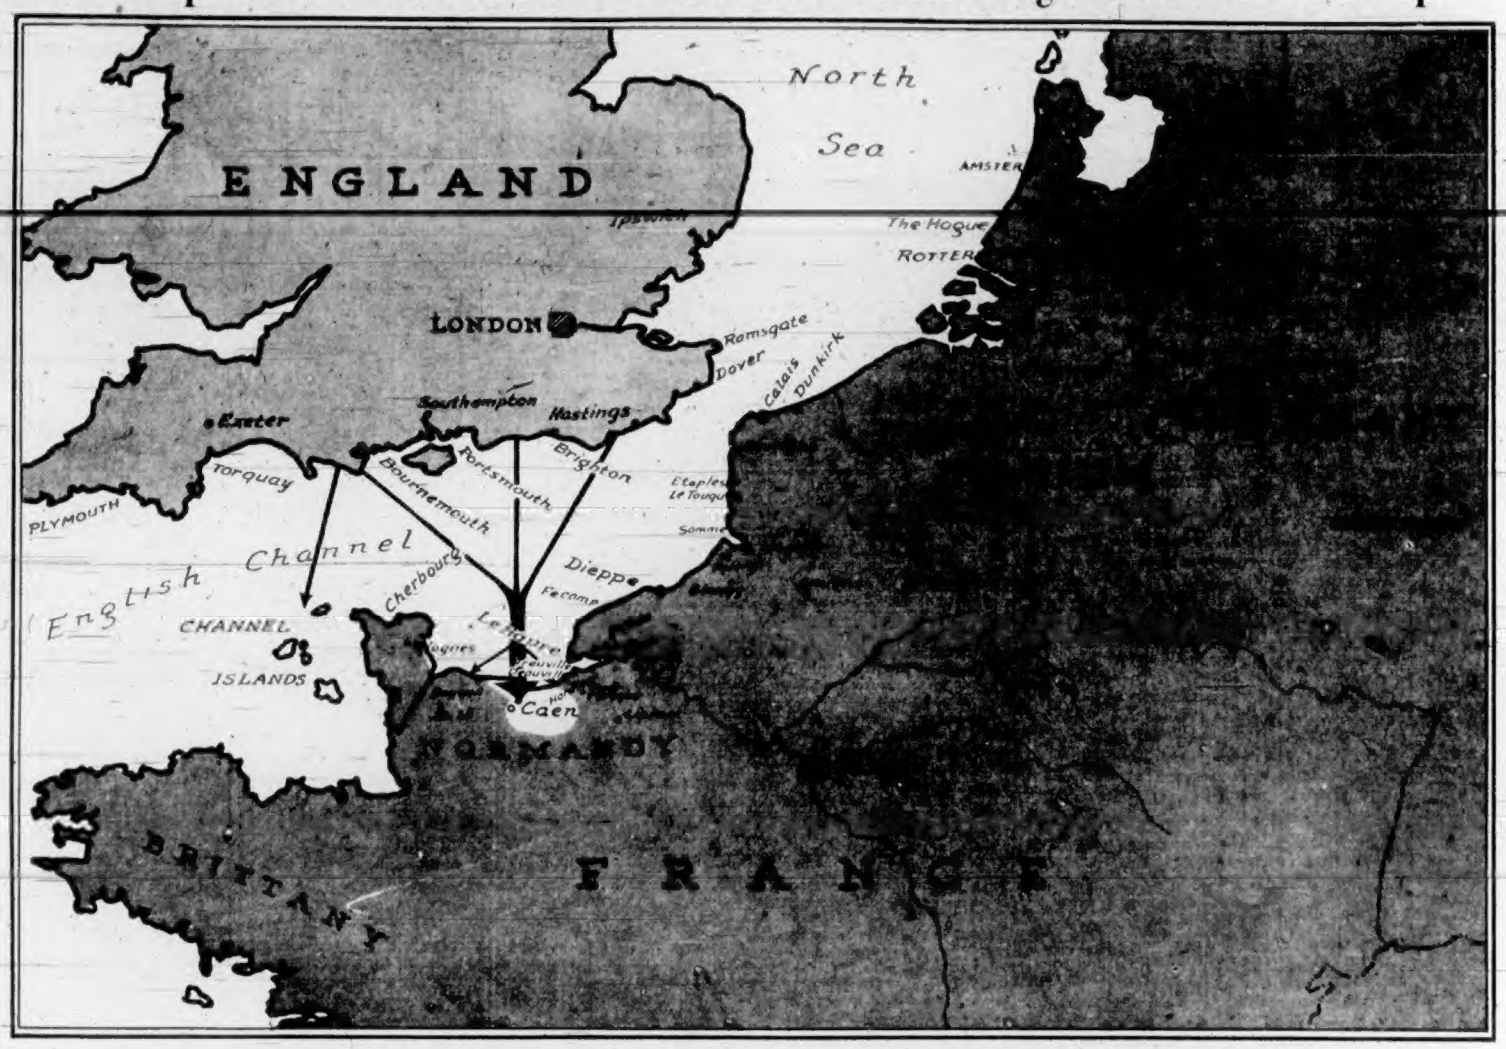
The poor civilian in those areas was the person to pity. Even if his house had not been requisitioned he would have tanks in his back yard, armored cars on the lawn in front and probably a couple of jeeps parked in the garage with a "duck" in the laneway.

KILLED IN ACTION

VERNON, B.C., June 6 (CP).—Pte. Walter McKenzie Drummond, 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Drummond, of Okanagan Landing, has been killed in action on the Italian front, His widow lives at nearby Swan Lake.

Pte. Drummond formerly lived in Armstrong. He went overseas with the Canadian army two years ago.

Colonist Map Shows Where Armies of Liberation Are Assaulting the Fortress of Europe



This map, specially prepared yesterday by The Daily Colonist to give its readers a clear picture of the invasion coast, shows where the main assault took place along a 100-mile front between Cherbourg and Le Havre. The heavy black section of the arrow points to the Caen area where, Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons, Allied troops have pressed "several miles" inland. The white area is the scene of bitter fighting as the invasion troops fan outward. Prime Minister Churchill also stated landings were taking place at various points along the beaches as indicated by the small arrows leading off the black section of the large arrow. The smaller arrow to the left points to the Channel Islands which, according to German reports, have also been invaded by the Allies.

Message to Empire

Very plain and direct, as befitting one who has himself seen action, was His Majesty's address yesterday to the British Empire. It was a call to prayer in a just cause. Such an appeal matches the anxiety in countless thousands of homes at this moment, including those in our own community. Brave men have gone out to fight for us. We should ask God that He guide them to victory, and lead the world to safer and to quieter days. It is truly a great crusade, perhaps the most memorable one the world has even known.

King George made his plea eloquent through its sincerity and simplicity. That appeal is carried best of all in His Majesty's own words. We quote:

"At this historic moment surely not one of us is too busy, too young or too old, to play his part in the nation-wide, perchance world-wide, vigil of prayer as the great crusade sets forth. After nearly five years of toil and suffering we must renew that crusading impulse on which we entered the war and met its darkest hour. We and our Allies are sure that our fight is against evil, and for a world in which goodness and honor may be the foundation of life of men in every land.

"That we may be worthily matched with this new summons of destiny, I desire solemnly to call my people to prayer and dedication.

"We are not unmindful of our shortcomings of the past and present. We shall not ask that God may do our will, but that we may be enabled to do the will of God; and we dare to believe that God has used our Nation and Empire as an instrument for fulfilling His high purpose."

His Majesty closed his address with a quotation from the Psalms, one of those living utterances which draw the heart of man beyond turmoil into the vision of an earned and lasting peace.

Beachheads Established

No battle can be described in advance. When it was said officially yesterday that the Allies had established beachheads on the Cherbourg Peninsula and at points were moving inland, that the German resistance as a whole had been less than expected, and that invasion plans were working well on land, at sea and in the air the free world was told all that could be reported of the opening round of the Battle of Germany. It was the enemy who said that these beachheads were fifteen miles long, between Le Havre and Cherbourg, that stiff fighting was taking place at Caen with tanks involved. British pilots corroborated the Caen fighting, and told of beaches securely mastered and supplies moving ashore with precision and dispatch. But it is too early yet for a clearer picture, too many pieces have to be fitted together. "Progress" sums up the reports of the day, and that was the word used by the Allied headquarters.

From the British Broadcasting Corporation at London came one of the clearest accounts of the day. The broadcast told of an Allied armada of several thousand vessels moving into position off the French Coast, told of opposed and unopposed landings, described how beachmasters took charge and began the unloading of first supplies, spoke of the 11,000 Allied invasion aircraft all under the hand of one man, and of some 6,000 vessels, great and small, which had done their work in the opening hours of the attack. These craft included vessels carrying 16-inch guns, cruisers and flotillas of smaller craft—all covering the landing barges, filled with fighting men. Some 5,000 tons of bombs were dropped on ten headlands where German batteries were silenced outright. Ashore, advanced troops began to move inland, with their tanks and landed gear.

A Vast Armada

Eye-witnesses returning from flights over the Channel told of a dense congregation of Allied shipping—for the most part unmolested by the Luftwaffe. British craft predominated, and all of them were moving on schedule about their allotted tasks. Pilots described, too, how the smoke screens had preceded our men ashore, and how the most powerful aerial shield in history barred the sky to the enemy over the main beachhead. From it all, there seemed little doubt that the landings have been effected—at some points without opposition and at others with stiff fighting—beachheads established and made secure, and the actual invasion of the hinterland itself begun. Airborne troops landing well inland had at some points caught the enemy between crossfires. Above all, the attack had proved to be a surprise.

With such encouraging news, the delay of the next few hours may be borne with better patience. The German High Command was caught napping in the chief area of the attack. Every enemy resource will be brought now in an effort to head off the Allied spearheads, to stop this thrust by one Allied Army Group from becoming a wedge in the whole West Wall. On our side, air power is sure to be used against German concentrations, and against all enemy traffic moving on the roads. The battle is joined in the West, and hourly it must increase in intensity.

Battle of Germany

As Prime Minister Churchill said in the House of Commons yesterday, the initial attack will be followed by others, according to how the situation develops. The Germans were speaking of Rouen a good deal yesterday. What is clear beyond question is that this is the real thing; that [illegible] there will be neither rest nor pause for our men, nor any surcease of an accumulating and terrific pressure upon the enemy. Nor, upon our side, may we expect it all to be plain sailing. Inevitably there will be reverses and checks, as well as the gains and successes. But in the end such weight, so determinedly applied, will force the issue; the more so because east and south, as well as from the west, the Battle of Germany has opened, and everywhere the enemy will soon be at bay.

Upon Canada's part, it is established beyond doubt now that Canadians are in action in France—and that they have taken their first objectives with élan. Even while our anxiety must rise, it should be remembered that these men have been more than four and a half years in Great Britain, and that for them this will be the biggest day of their lives. It is the chance they sought and volunteered for. "Canada" on the shoulder has meant something sturdy and aggressive in three wars, but there is every indication that in these days its meaning will be carried to still greater heights. Firm in a just cause, humble before the Eternal Judge, our men will go forward into battle with the honor and the admiration of everyone in this land as their right and their due. May God defend the right!

Pursuing the Enemy

Although the western invasion of Europe tended to eclipse the great victory of the Fifth and Eighth Armies in Italy, that victory was growing broader with every hour yesterday. British troops had taken Tivoli, northeast of Rome and one-third of the distance eastward across the peninsula towards Pescara. American troops had crossed the Tiber on eleven bridges abandoned intact by the Germans, who were still fleeing northward by every route they could find. Hot in pursuit rode the armored sections of the Allied forces, with planes roaring overhead. In Rome itself, 2,000 Germans were taken prisoner, trapped at the bridges they could not hold.

The objective of the composite Allied force in Italy, to destroy the Tenth and Fourteenth German Armies and nullify their effect in the war, is closer. Five of the eighteen German divisions defeated south of Rome have been badly mauled. For months to come they will be of little service to the foe. Of the balance still in flight, many enemy divisions have lost all their road transport, and several of them their equipment and field stores as well. Due to the pace of his retreat, it is doubtful if the enemy will salvage much of anything from the successive fortified lines which the Allies overran in their fourteen [illegible]

[illegible] be seen if the Germans will bring reinforce[illegible] from the North, and attempt to make another stand south of the northern mountainous ridge of Italy. With invasion on in the West, such a course would be a hazard, while conversely a German retreat up the length of Italy would put the Allies within cross-bombing range of the invasion ports themselves. At the moment, however, two badly whipped German armies are in full retreat, and they are being followed closely by their victors. Rome was a demoralizing loss to the Hun; a solid and substantial victory upon the United Nations' side.

Flight-Lieutenant Hugh Parker, R.A.F., who made himself known to a wide circle of friends in this community, is now with the air liaison branch of the B.B.C., giving broadcasts from sound trucks in the field. In letters to friends here, Lieutenant Parker stated recently that his "opposite number" in the C.B.C. is "Bill" Herbert, a Victorian and a former member of The Daily Colonist editorial staff.

Pemberton Woods

Here in the woods what peace my heart has found;
Steeped in the sunlight purple grasses shine,
The greenest world of trees enfolds me round—
Poplar and maple, oak and fir and pine:
The gift of quietude is in their song,
Joy—joy is vocal in the vireo,
The wren repeats insistently his long
Reiteration: warbler's reedy bow
Is drawn across the strings. The symphony
Completely tuned to melody of June,
The season's best ensemble, hauntingly
Floods earth and sky, composing a new tune
Golden such moments. Where cloud shadows run
I sit and listen gladly in the sun.

This Petaled Bridge

These roses? They were sent to me from far
Away. Their perfumed breath bears messages
Of sacred import to my soul. Dear hands
Clasp mine today upon this petaled bridge
So fragile, yet firm built with steadfast love.
For Time is naught—past, present, future merge
Within my ageless heart. About this link
Of roses crowd our memories, our thoughts,
Our sureness of triune Eternity.

Harbor Wanted

Frank M. Kelley

Dreams of Victoria's maritime-minded citizens, who visioned the creation of a harbor to serve ocean-going vessels and at the same time assure the establishment of a lucrative offshore traffic for the port, looked as though they might really come true some thirty years ago when the Dominion Government-approved project got under way beyond the snug little inner basin that had been sufficient for Hudson's Bay Company and Colonial day operators of shipping, but was not going to be equal to the demands of traffic some Victoria merchants believed could be routed through the port if adequate facilities were provided to take care of a share of the ocean-borne trade developing between west coast of America ports and the Orient in the latter days of the past century and the early years of this one.

Moving spirits in the agitation for ocean port facilities good enough to serve ships engaged in moving large tonnages of freight felt that Victoria, because of its position in relation to ship movements in certain directions, might very well become a transfer or transhipment point of considerable importance; and when an expert and pioneer in trans-Pacific ship operation agreed with them and subsequently demonstrated faith in his convictions by sending his ships here, it was proof that Victorians so-minded were on the right track. Other lines which saw the advantages of Victoria's position followed Captain Robert Dollar's lead and a considerable volume of business passed through Victoria as a result.

This ocean-borne traffic kept expanding even with the limited facilities available. Then the Dominion Government realized that the port of Victoria was important enough to receive some consideration nationally and accordingly prepared plans for the development of an ocean basin which would serve all the needs of Canada's western portal for a long term of years. Victorians had ideas about the size the harbor should be, too. It was suggested and recommended that the east breakwater should extend from the shoreline at Holland Point to Brotchie Ledge, from where an extension should run westerly several thousand feet, providing protection from southeast winds, with the west breakwater beginning on the shoreline between Macaulay Point and Harrison Island and extending into the Strait far enough to protect the basin from southeasterly blows.

GOVERNMENT ENGINEERS DECIDED

The two breakwaters as recommended to be built would have cost a large amount of money; and while they would protect a basin of considerable extent the expenditure might not have been altogether warranted, although the size of the basin as suggested by interested Victorians indicate that the suggestors had nothing small in mind at the time. Preparing plans, however, Government engineers decided on the location of one protective wall from Ogden Point, some 2,500 feet in length; with the other from Harrison Island, approximately 1,500 feet, the enclosure providing a large enough harbor area to take care of many ships of all sizes. In addition to the breakwaters, the Government also undertook to build two piers immediately inside the east breakwater.

Unfortunately for Victoria's prospects of having a well-planned harbor and Government-built docks, the work had started and was well under way when the first Great War upset a good many plans. If the work had not been so far advanced by the time it was finally realized that the war was going to be hard, long and costly, very likely it would have been abandoned before the east wall and docks were finished, which might have been a good thing in the long run; for with a resumption of work on the eastern wall following the Armistice, it is reasonable to assume the west wall would have been completed at the same time.

In any event the east breakwater was finished, but if the docks were considered complete when work stopped on them, it showed a lack of knowledge concerning West Coast conditions on somebody's part. All too low at most stages of the tide, their hard stone facings and copings proved a continual source of worry to shipmasters when declared open for business after the Foundation Company finished using the docks as an outfitting depot for the wooden ships built for the French Government.

THOUGHT JOB WOULD BE FINISHED

Of course, while it was always the considered opinion of those whose views should be of some concern in such matters that the docks were too low in any event, it is still a possibility that the designer or designers had every reason to believe the west breakwater was to be built. This being so, while the low docks might not be altogether satisfactory, ships lying alongside them would not be subject to the violent wave action which often accompanies a brisk southwest blow, and puts them in danger of serious damage to their sides. This is especially true of liners, the finely moulded sides of which were occasionally pinched and their plates sprung.

Some ships which made Victoria a regular port of call in years gone by come here no more. There are reasons. Lack of harbor facilities is one. True, Victoria retained, or did until 1941 anyway, a considerable trade, largely in transit, one of the principal sources of revenue and consequently of employment in every seaport. Whether this will return with the postwar years to Victoria is something else again. Certainly it is reasonable to believe that the chances will be much better for trade resumption if proper facilities are provided for safe harborage. In fact it might confidently be expected to increase if that long-promised breakwater becomes a reality in time to take care of whatever traffic offers.

Observation Car

By G.B.

Not long ago a low-flying plane drew comments from residents of Shawnigan Lake. "Probably looking for a submarine," a villager laughed. But there is actually a lake that held a submarine for 45 years. In Central City, Colorado, 9,000 feet above sea level, a gold camp contractor, engineer and inventor named R. T. Owens drew plans for a submarine at the same time Simon Lake and John Holland were experimenting with submersibles in the East. Owens hired carpenters and a tinsmith, and completed his strange craft behind a livery stable. It had a stout wooden frame plated with soldered sheet zinc, and was 18 feet long, three and a half feet beam, and five feet deep. It was hoisted on an enormous hayrack and dragged to Missouri Lake by four horses in 1898. Owens prepared to board his pride and joy, but was persuaded by friends to first try it out with ballast. Willing hands loaded the submarine with rocks, but it sank like a stone. The crestfallen inventor gave up further experiments and soon after left the city. When recently raised from its muddy grave, the vessel was found to have suffered severely from the ravages of time. A twisted mass of rods and pipes was all that remained of the motive power, and those who examined it were unable to determine what form of engine had been installed . . . Man may be able to fly like a bird, but he cannot sit on a barbed-wire fence . . . W. Bennett comments: "Maybe the average man has twice as much money as before the war, but then the average man does not wear a white collar."

IN AID OF SHIP

Sir,—Will you allow us through your columns to call attention to the tag day in Esquimalt on June 10. H.M.C.S. Esquimalt, which has been doing splendid work elsewhere, was adopted by the Mary Croft Esquimalt Chapter, I.O.D.E., last year. Parcels of needed comforts and for recreation have been forwarded, but we feel that more help than we can manage should be sent to the ship which is named after our own Pacific naval station.

As many people interested in the navy (and particularly those who may have been connected with the station) might not have an opportunity to purchase a tag the members of the executive listed below would gratefully receive contributions of money or of games, playing cards, etc., which could be mailed or left at the following addresses: Mrs. C. L. Bishop, 1124 Greenwood Street; Mrs. Warren Smith, 1422 Harrison Street; Mrs. E. Mackenzie-Grieve, 958 St. Patrick Street.

The time used is Pacific Standard for the 120th Meridian west. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours, from midnight to midnight. The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the table, the tide rises or falls continuously during two successive tidal periods without turning.

To find the depth of water on the sill at the Esquimalt graving dock at any tide, add 38 feet to the height of high water as above given.

40,000 Apply for Jobs on Relief Staff

WASHINGTON, June 6 (CP) — Some 40,000 people, many of them in Canada, have applied for jobs with the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, yet obtaining staff is expected to be a major problem, an officer of the organization said here in an interview.

Trouble is that U.N.R.R.A. wants highly skilled people for this temporary job of healing the wounds of war as the conquered or invaded nations are liberated.

And the highly skilled people are all engaged now on important and vital work—or most are.

There are two schools for training U.N.R.R.A. experts, one in nearby College Park, University of Maryland, and another in London. The Maryland school has close to 100 experts in their lines—public health, transportation, social service and such professions—now studying conversational foreign languages, customs of the people among whom they will work and conditions in those countries.

He expects to need about 2,200 when U.N.R.R.A. is at its peak of operations.

WAS HERO

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, June 6 (CP).—Capt. Pierre Potvin, of Quebec City, was disclosed here as the man who, although wounded five times, continued to direct the operations of his company that played a big part in the advance of the Royal 22nd Regiment of Quebec through the Germans' Gustav and Hitler lines in late May.

That which is true, honest and sincere is most congenial to the nature of man.

Does Life Insurance give good value?

With high taxes, increased living costs, and a ceiling on wages and salaries, enough money can still be saved to pay for life insurance. For example, compare the cost of an Ordinary Life Policy with the cost of a few everyday items.

$2500

The price of one pound of candy per week buys a Great-West Life policy for $2500. That means $2500 of protection till your family is self-supporting, then cash or an income in your later years.

$6000

The price of four movie tickets per week would buy a Great-West Life policy for $6000. For your own peace of mind, you must have insurance. In no other way can you provide, at such low cost, for whatever may happen.

$7500

The price of one package of cigarettes per day would buy a $7500 policy with the Great-West Life. That means a guarantee of $7500 in cash for your family if you should die, a nest egg for you in the future if you live.

$10,000

The price of one game of golf each week would buy a Great-West Life policy for $10,000. If you paid the first premium today, your family would get $10,000 cash if you died tomorrow. What would they do without life insurance?

Life insurance is not a luxury. It is an essential you must place first on your list along with food, clothing and shelter. Life insurance alone can guarantee food, clothing and shelter for your loved ones if you should die, and for you in your later years if you live. A Great-West Life man will be glad to help you with your insurance problems.

The above examples are based on an Ordinary Life Policy taken at age 25. Life Insurance premiums, of course, vary with the age and plan selected.

Sons of All United Nations Join in Assault on Europe

LONDON, June 6 (CP). — The world's free nations today smacked a steel hammer into history's longest prison wall—the four-year-old shield thrown up by the Nazis from the Arctic Circle to Spain.

Tonight Prime Minister Churchill was able to say "this operation is proceeding in a thoroughly satisfactory manner" and that lodgements exist on a broad front.

Bridgeheads have been established on the north French coast.

Apart from the basic fact of the landings, four circumstances surrounding the conditions under which they were made are known:

1. The concentration points from which the invasion fleet started were not seriously bombed.

2. The convoys steaming toward France were not greatly disturbed.

3. Mine fields were swept without much interference.

4. Coastal batteries were not as active as anticipated.

Sons of virtually all the United Nations assembled in this island base for liberation—men of the enemy-occupied countries, men of the nations dedicated to the task of freeing their comrades in the homelands—had a share in the landings between Cherbourg and Le Havre.

Among her partners Canada had a proud part. Beyond, a worthy share in the air, sea and land operations today, her place in action goes back to an August day two years ago.

In the words of Lt.-Gen. Crerar, commander of the First Canadian Army, in a message to his troops: "The plans, preparations, methods and technique which will be employed are based on the knowledge and experience bought and paid for by the Second Canadian Division at Dieppe."

The exact proportions and share of the Royal Canadian Navy was not announced, but it was known ships manned by the R.C.N. carried Canadian ground troops across the Channel for the assault.

It is reasonable to suppose that Canadian destroyers, which recently were active in an English Channel battle and Bay of Biscay waters, also were on the job, and also possibly mine sweepers.

In the air the Dominion enhanced her brilliant record. The air picture saw heavy bombers smash at coastal artillery installations, mediums and fight-bombers disrupt roads and communications between the enemy's reserve formations and beaches, and provide superb cover for invasion troops.

In all these phases Canadian flyers had a full share.

good heart and all in good friendship.

"There is fighting proceeding at various points and we have captured various bridges which are of importance and which were not blown up. There is even fighting proceeding in the town of Caen, inland."

Earlier, he told the cheering House that the Allied liberating assault was "proceeding according to plan—and what a plan."

In his first report, the Prime Minister had told a wildly cheering House how the assault was launched —by a vast armada of 4,000 ships and thousands of lighter craft, supported by 11,000 first-line planes.

"The battle which is now beginning will grow constantly in scale and in intensity for many weeks to come and I shall not attempt to speculate upon its course.

"The landings on the beaches are proceeding at various points at the present time," Mr. Churchill said.

"The fire of shore batteries has been largely quelled."

He said that "obstacles which were constructed in the sea have not proved so difficult as was apprehended."

Mr. Churchill said the vast operation was "undoubtedly the most complicated and difficult which has ever occurred."

ALLIED TROOPS RECEIVED WITH JOY IN ROME

To cheers by members, Mr. Churchill took "formal cognizance of the liberation of Rome," and added:

"American and other forces of the Fifth Army broke through the enemy's last lines and entered Rome, where Allied troops have been received with joy by the population.

"This entry and liberation of Rome means that we shall have power to defend it from hostile air attacks and deliver it from the famine with which it was threatened."

Britain's war leader paid high tribute both to Gen. Sir Harold Alexander and Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark, in Italy, and said: "Complete unity prevails throughout the Allied armies . . . there is complete confidence in the supreme commander, General Eisenhower, and his lieutenants and also in the commander of the expeditionary force, General Montgomery."

There was grim news as well as good in Mr. Churchill's address.

In discussing the battle of the Anzio beachhead in Italy, which was established last January and held against heavy German counter-attacks, he said the Allies lost about 20,000 men, and the Germans 25,000.

But the Anzio landing had in the end borne good fruit by forcing Hitler to send south of Rome eight or nine divisions "which he might well have needed elsewhere," he added.

"It would be futile to attempt to estimate our final gains at the present time. It is our duty, however, to pay the warmest tribute of gratitude and admiration to Gen. Alexander for the skill with which he has saddled this army of so many different states and nations, and for the temerity and fortitude with which he sustained long periods when success was denied.

"In Gen. Clark, of the United States army, he has found a leader, a fighting leader of the highest order with the qualities that all the Allied troops have shown themselves, in noble and unjealous rivalry . . ."

After this bombardment, the flat-bottomed "Elsie" ships — landing craft—headed for the beaches laden with fighting men and guns and tanks and shells and field rations and hypodermics and radios and bandages and trucks, the bewildering baggage of combat.

There were plywood, 36-foot L.C.V.P.'s (landing craft, vehicle personnel); 50-foot L.C.M.'s (mechanized), valuable for supply; 200-foot L.C.I.'s (infantry); ungainly 200-foot L.C.T.'s (tanks) and the queens of the Elsies — 300-foot L.S.T.'s (landing ship, tanks), disgorging anything from jeeps to monster road builders.

And all around like water bugs were amphibious "ducks" and other weird small craft.

Chaplains Accompany Troops on Invasion

WITH THE CANADIAN INVASION FORCES, June 6 (CP).—Padres of the Canadian chaplain service were with the Canadian invasion forces as they struck at the Continent. The padres are attached in most cases to regimental aid posts to help with the wounded and do anything else they can in the battle.

Included among those with the field units are Captains E. W. Horton and J. A. Whittles, Vancouver.

Victorians Man Landing Craft

MANY men from Greater Victoria are among the Royal Canadian Navy personnel manning Canadian landing craft flotillas attached to the Royal Navy, and they have played a major part in the invasion. Their training has been brought to a fine degree, for movements must be precisely co-ordinated to land these craft on the beaches and assure complete success of the operation.

Hundreds of Thousands of Lives Depended on Choice of "D-Day"

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 6 (AP).—In this military Shangri-La, cleverly hidden from snooping German spy planes, the war's greatest secret was hatched early this year.

Adolf Hitler would have squandered the lives of 10 divisions and much of his wealth to have learned it, even up to a few hours ago.

But today he was given it "free of charge." And it may cost him his life and powers eventually. The secret naturally was "D-day and H-hour."

D-day was military terminology for the day of the great Allied attack. H-hour was the exact hour British, Canadian and American soldiers were expected to set foot on the soil of Western Europe.

The complications of modern amphibious warfare made it necessary that these two factors be known months in advance.

The dates were set for the arrival of troops, guns and tanks. The dates for air attacks on specific objectives. Dates for establishing bases. Dates for the capture of key ports.

Dates are not figures on the calendar. They are scheduled in terminology like this: D-plus-five, or D-minus-six. The first means five days after the troops land. The second means six days before the day for attack.

Hundreds of thousands of lives depended on a successful D-day choice. And every aid of military science hiding under a cloak of camouflage here was brought forth to aid the supreme commander in his difficult choice.

British and American weather experts studied reports for the last quarter of a century over every foot of coast. They figured the exact hours of darkness and light.

Canadian, British and American air force chiefs were given specified objectives and estimated how long it was going to take to beat the German air force to a pulp.

Then these men walked down the long corridors, heavily guarded by M.P.'s, and presented their invasion date to Eisenhower.

Allied supply chiefs estimated how many guns and tanks were required and by what date they could be assembled at designated points. Navy men made their estimates.

In Moscow, the Russians studied their problems and how best to correlate operations on both east and west fronts. In the Mediterranean, the Allied staff there sent in their data.

With all this before him, the supreme commander spent long hours in his office selecting and rejecting—finally hitting on one date. It probably didn't coincide exactly with any submitted but was the best possible compromise.

Eisenhower is a "lucky" general. He picked D-day for the African invasion 60 days ahead of time, with the scientific odds 9-to-1 against him that French Morocco's iron coast would be swept by tides and waves that would make landings impossible except for three days of the month. But D-day found the waters fairly calm.

He picked the Sicily invasion date more than a month in advance and except for a high wind early in the night the time was almost perfect. The same happened at Salerno.

head and some of the enemy's transport also is moving.

The French coast still is wreathed in smoke driving far down the Channel. In some bombarded towns fires are burning and destroyers and support craft still are prowling up and down the coast to finish off anything else that may show up.

Allied air cover over the fleet and beachhead is very complete. Every few minutes Spitfires or Lightnings sweep past in the sunshine which has now come out. The wind shows signs of abating.

The Canadian assault formation staff appears pleased at the result of the morning's battle, but they are not going to be certain until they get a solid line on a perimeter inland from which they can strike deeper into France.

SCORES HIS FOURTH CONSECUTIVE "BEAT"

Ross Munro, whose eyewitness stories were ahead of those of all other correspondents at Dieppe and in the invasions of Sicily and Italy, scored his fourth consecutive beat on the invasion of France.

Munro, one of two Canadian Press war correspondents with the assault wave of the invading Canadian forces, got his story back from the battle area 20 hours and 30 minutes after the landing began. The first Canadian troops landed at 8 a.m. Tuesday. Munro reported in a story filed from London at 4.30 a.m. today (Wednesday) (7.30 p.m. P.D.T., Tuesday).

It had not been considered likely the first story would be transmitted from the battle zone sooner than 36 hours after the landing—the time it took for Munro's first story on the Dieppe raid to get out.

For the invasion from the west Munro was teamed with C.P.'s William Stewart as in Sicily and Italy.

Another C.P. war correspondent, Maurice Desaulniers, is with the French-Canadian troops and Allan Nickleson is with the Royal Canadian Navy. Louis Hunter, C.P. war correspondent with the R.C.A.F. has been filing stories regularly since the start of the operation but he has been in England throughout.

COURTENAY, B.C., June 6 (CP).—Jean Trudel, 24, of Montreal, and Douglas McKay, 16, of Vancouver, drowned last night when their canoe capsized in Long Lake 20 miles from Campbell River. McKay had saved himself and dived in again to rescue Trudel when he, too, was lost.

The two young loggers were employees of Bloedel, Stewart & Welch logging concern.

Canadian Headquarters Preparing And Building Up Over Two Years

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY INVASION TROOPS, June 6 (CP).—For more than two years headquarters of the First Canadian Army has been preparing to direct the Canadian troops in the European invasion.

From March 6, 1942, when headquarters was first established, it has been gradually built up, broadened and finally completely staffed. Hundreds of officers and men make up this headquarters, considered one of the best trained in the Allied forces.

Senior officer is Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, army commander, and under him the chief of staff, a brilliant, youthful brigadier who is a permanent force soldier. The chief of staff formerly held the title "brigadier general staff," but it was altered last Spring.

Stemming down from Gen. Crerar and the chief of staff are three main staff branches in the headquarters.

First there is the general staff, which includes operations, intelligence, air and staff duties branches. These branches are responsible with the commander for fighting the battles. They get the machinery of the corps and divisions rolling into the fight once the plan is decided upon.

The second main branch is administrative and a brigadier, a prominent Montreal businessman before the war, heads this vital branch.

A third main section of army headquarters is the planning. Officers of this section have done the basic planning for the Canadians' share in the invasion.

The great majority of officers in the headquarters are Canadians. There are some British staff officers, but the number is not large. It has been built up by Canadians and they are running the show now.

Most of the officers are comparatively young. Few are more than 40. They have had staff college training, they have served with field units and have been on staffs of brigades, divisions and corps in many cases.

R.C.N. Landing Craft Take Part

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN FRANCE, June 6 (CP).—Two landing-craft flotillas of the Royal Canadian Navy carried a portion of the Canadian assault troops to France and put them down on the beaches in the first wave of attack.

A reserve formation which went in on the heels of the assault waves was taken to France entirely by Canadian craft and crews, and other follow-up troops were also carried by R.C.N. craft.

This was the biggest task ever undertaken by the R.C.N. landing craft flotillas. The craft they used were what is officially designated as Landing Craft Infantry.

They are large, about 200 feet long, and look like a miniature destroyer. They carry about 200 soldiers. They nose upon the beach and long ramps shoot up on either side.

Around the sharp bow the infantry go to the beach along these ramps.

In addition to the L.C.I., a Royal Canadian Navy Landing Ship Infantry, a much larger craft of about 10,000 tons, also shared in this huge operation.

It went to within several miles of the coast of France and then the small landing craft assault 50-foot craft were lowered from her and carried the infantry in the rest of the way.

Canada's First Paratroopers

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY INVASION FORCES, June 6 (CP).—For the first time in Dominion history, Canada had parachute troops ready for action when the Allies invaded Europe. Nearly two years ago this Canadian parachute force was formed for just such an assignment.

Every officer and man in the Canadian force is a volunteer. They trained at Fort Benning, Ga., and at Shilo Camp, Man., before coming to England in August, 1943, and are the most highly specialized force in the Canadian Army. Some officers and men had made 50 training jumps. Route marches, infantry training on the ground and "P.T." were daily routine. Sometimes they marched 50 miles in full kit in 25 hours.

Each training day started with a two-mile prebreakfast run.

The commanding officer comes from Saskatoon and as a junior officer in the Saskatoon Light Infantry went on the Spitzbergen raid in the Summer of 1941. He has commanded the force since it was organized.

Major Jeff Nicklin, Winnipeg Blue Bombers football star, is second in command and adjutant is Captain John Virgin, of Toronto. Lieut. Ken Arril, of Port Arthur, Ont., is assistant adjutant.

The padre is Captain George Harris, of Winnipeg. He and the medical officer, Captain C. N. Brebner, of Toronto, jump with the troops.

Among the lieutenants are B. E. Besteck, D. S. MacLean, Jim Gregor, R. E. Harrison and H. R. Madden, all of Winnipeg, and R. J. Mitchell, Weyburn, Sask.

C.Q.M.S.'s include Ross Johnson, Calgary, and G. Q. Imbree, Vancouver.

Nanaimo Citizens Pray for Victory

NANAIMO, June 6.—Citizens in all walks of life attended a service of prayer held under the auspices of Nanaimo Ministerial Association in St. Andrew's Presbyterain Church to pray for divine guidance and speedy victory for the United Nations.

It was the first service since the invasion was announced. Similar Sunday services will follow.

David Arnett was organist. Rev. John Wright read the Scriptures, Rev. A. Wilson gave the address and Rev. Duncan Ritchie the benediction. A session of prayer and silent prayer featured the service.

To Help Red Cross Will Give Day's Pay

CHEMAINUS, June 6 (CP).—Between 300 and 400 workers at Chemainus Lumber Company here will give a day's pay to the Red Cross to mark Invasion Day.

"We feel that now the invasion is started the Red Cross will need all the help it can get and more," a union spokesman said today.

Services Precede Troops' Landings

WITH THE CANADIAN INVASION FORCES, June 6 (CP).—Religious services were held for Canadian troops aboard practically all the invasion ships a few hours before the force went ashore to storm the beaches on the French coast.

For these services the Canadian chaplain services issued a little booklet to the units to help commanders holding these services. The booklet is headed by a sentence from John Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Hymn"—"He who would be valiant, let him follow the Master who goes forth conquering and to conquer always."

The service includes a hymn, "Holy, Holy, Holy," and the 23rd Psalm, as well as several short prayers and a suggested line of Bible readings.

A note on the booklet said: "It is hopefully suggested that either the skipper or commander using this card will say prayers at some not too inconvenient time prior to 'touch down.'"

Plan Solemn Service Outdoors on Sunday

All Roman Catholic churches in Victoria will participate in a Corpus Christi procession and outdoor solemn benediction, starting Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Special prayers will be offered for the success of the invasion in thanksgiving for the liberation of Rome, and for the safe return of those in the Allied armies.

The procession will start from St. Ann's Academy, proceeding along Humboldt and Rupert Streets and Heywood Avenue to an outdoor altar where solemn benediction will be celebrated, returning later to the Academy. The clergy, sisters, representatives of the churches and societies, altar boys in their cassocks, nurses in uniform and members of the Chinese Mission will take part.

The War Today

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

A.P. War Analyst

Riding the ships of the mightiest sea-air armada ever known, British, American and Canadian troops are in Nazi-prostrated France at last, fighting beyond the beaches of Normandy from which William the Conqueror led his invasion of the British Isles.

Coastal outposts of the boasted German "impregnable" Atlantic wall were shattered on a wide front. From the Cherbourg tip of the Normandy Peninsula all around the curving shore of the great French bay to the mouth of the Seine Allied troops are still pouring ashore from landing craft. Deep inland air-borne comrades were reported waging battle in the streets of French cities and towns. Allied leaders report intial losses smaller than expected.

There was little by which to measure the early successes of the great invasion except the indication that, against all military logic, it apparently had attained tactical surprise. Striking out boldly in daylight under cover of overwhelming air power and a mighty naval bombardment, thousands of big and little sea craft laden with men and guns and tanks made the Channel passage to come to grips with the foe.

The coast of Normandy obviously is not the short and direct road to Berlin. That lies farther to the north and east across the Low Countries. The Germans may anticipate that an Allied follow-up of even greater proportions across the Channel narrows between Dover and Calais is also impending. The Luftwaffe, which didn't show up in strength yesterday, may be being held back for that.

There is some justification for a possible Nazi conception that the invasion site selected for the first bold stroke may be a covering operation, that an attack much closer to the heart of Germany is to be expected. Paris in an unquestionable Allied objective. The Normandy beaches over which they are driving are a natural bridgehead to Paris, but it is Berlin, not Paris, that is the goal of the Allies.

Normandy Ideal Invasion Path

LONDON, June 6 (AP).—Normandy, jutting out along the English Channel opposite British invasion bases, forms a natural peninsula pathway into France, and from the first Allied commanders have recognized it as one of their best bets for beachheads.

The gun-bristling coastline, rock shoals and in some places bad tide made initial landings hazardous, but with a foothold established the Allies can attack along either side of the peninsula, protected on the flank by the sea.

The Cherbourg Peninsula—Old Normandy—thrusts out to the Cape de la Hague and Cape de Barfleur 88 miles from the Isle of Wight.

The peninsula is 70 miles long and ranges from 25 to 60 miles wide, with the port of Cherbourg at the tip as a keypoint of coastal defence. Cherbourg is 75 miles from Bournemouth, England.

From German accounts, the Allied objective appeared to be establishment of a broad beachhead along the curving coast between Le Havre and Cherbourg.

Penetrations inland would clear all of Normandy, with its good air field sites, and provide a pathway down the Seine Valley to Paris.

Le Havre, 100 air line miles northwest of Paris on the Seine River estuary, is France's second seaport and has 14 ship basins and eight miles of docks.

One of France's main trans-Atlantic terminals for peacetime trade, the city itself lies mostly on a level strip of ground except on the north where a great bluff overlooks the entrance to the Seine estuary. Before the war it was France's 11th city in population with about 165,000 persons.

PRISONERS JUBILANT

LOS ANGELES, June 6 (AP). — Italian prisoners of war, now operating as work companies at the port of embarkation here, were jubilant today over news of the Allied invasion of Europe.

"Maybe now the war will be over in three months," said their spokesman, Capt. Riccardo Martella, of Rome. "Then we can return home and go to work."

Provincial Command Elects Langford Officers

Many Resolutions Are Formulated

The British Columbia Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion wants all future immigration of Japanese, Germans and other aliens into Canada stopped.

A resolution which received unanimous approval was presented at the concluding sessions of the Command conference held recently [illegible] The resolution also asks that concentrated areas of towns such as Brilliant be forbidden.

The women were unanimous in their condemnation of Japanese property holding in British Columbia and passed a resolution asking that Japanese be prohibited from again owning property and re-establishing themselves in industries and agriculture in the province.

They wish to have all Japanese and other aliens returned to their country of origin as soon as conditions permit.

Canadian women in uniform will be granted pensions and disability allowances equal to those given men in uniform if the strong recommendation endorsed by both the men and women's convention of the Canadian Legion is adopted by the Government.

The resolutions, protesting the unfair discrimination against women serving in this war, will be sent to Ottawa immediately, Mrs. Alec McLennan, secretary of the British Columbia Women's Provincial Command, stated.

At the present time a single woman with a disability of 100 per cent receives but $50 pension, while a single man receives $75. A man with as low as 5 per cent disability is pensionable, while at the same time a woman with the same disability must have 20 per cent or more to be eligible.

Recommendations from the meeting include increased clothing allowances for present war veterans; equal earning power and privileges for a serviceman's mother, as for his wife; the application of postwar plans now, as far as possible, for discharged men in the field of employment; equal pay for women in the services; free transportation for all members of the forces for furloughs and embarkation leaves; the establishment of a home for veterans' widows, similar to the Hycroft Convalescent Home; and the immediate enforcement of the conscription plebiscite.

The conference will request Canadian authorities to forward to next of kin of R.C.A.F. men, all personal effects of deceased, free of transportation expenses.

They expressed a desire to have prisoners of war in Canada more closely guarded and a better discipline maintained in prisoner of war camps.

Members of the Merchant Marine, they feel, should be extended all privileges granted to soldiers and sailors.

The conference will forward a suggestion to the Government asking for cheaper postal rates on parcels for service men and women, at home and abroad.

Mrs. Beth Currie, of New Westminster, was re-elected president of the command.

Other officers are: Mrs. Dean-Freeman, first vice-president; Mrs. Amy Caird, Portland, Ore., second vice-president; Mrs. A. Kincaid, Penticton, third vice-president; Mrs. E. Duffin, treasurer, and Mrs. A. McLennan, permanent secretary.

Weddings

VALIANT—RUDD

A quiet wedding was celebrated in the vestry of First United Church on Tuesday evening at 7:45 o'clock when Gladys Millar, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rudd, 801 Burnside Road, became the bride of Mr. Hugh Cecil Valiant, son of Mr. Arthur Valiant, 2092 Marne Street. Rev. Dr. Hugh A. McLeod officiated at the ceremony. The bride chose for the occasion a two-piece ensemble of rose crepe and she wore a Dutch hat trimmed with rose. Her corsage bouquet was of white carnations and sweet peas. Miss Muriel Dorothy Rudd was her sister's bridesmaid and wore a beige ensemble with all white accessories. Pink rosebuds composed her corsage bouquet. Mr. Stanley Tidbury, brother-in-law of the groom, acted as groomsman. Intimate friends attended the reception held at the home of the bride's parents. After a honeymoon spent on the Mainland, Mr. and Mrs. Valiant will reside on Portage Road, Saanich. Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mrs. Otis Unkefer and Mrs. M. Cooke, Santa Barbara, Cal., and Mr. John Munro, Vancouver.

SMITH—HOLMS

Against a charming floral background in St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, at 11:30 Tuesday morning, June 6, Ven. Archdeacon Nunns solemnized the marriage between Betty Margaret, only daughter of Mrs. Gwen Holms, Transit Road, and Sgt. William Benson Smith, R.C.O.C., son of Mrs. Selwyn C. P. Smith, Transit Road, and the late Mr. Smith. The organist was in attendance, and as the register was being signed, Miss Sheila Adams sang, "O Father, All Creating."

Given in marriage by her grandfather, Dr. A. B. Hudson, the bride was lovely in a long frock of white sheer with a fingertip veil caught into a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of red roses, white sweet peas and gardenias. The bridesmaids, Miss May Smith, sister of the groom, in yellow, and Miss Phillipa Beckton, dressed in blue jersey silk, wore clusters of fresh pastel-shaded flowers in their hair, and carried Colonial posies of the same flowers. Sgt. Charles Burgess, R.C.O.C., was groomsman. The reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, where masses of garden flowers made a fragrant setting. Roses were arranged on the buffet refreshment table, and before the bride cut the three-tier cake, a toast, especially recorded by Dr. C. O. Maconachie in Ottawa, a very old family friend, was given. Sgt. and Mrs. Smith will return to Victoria after a wedding trip Up-Island, for which the bride chose a violet tone suit with a beige hat trimmed with violet, a corsage bouquet of pale pink roses and gardenias and snakeskin accessories.

JEFFERY—KERRY

A pretty double-ring ceremony took place Saturday evening, June 3, in Centennial United Church, Gorge Road, when Frances Lillian Alice, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Kerry, 223 Russell Street, became the bride of L.A.C. Jack Raymond Jeffery, R.C.A.F., younger son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Jeffery, 3922 Donald Street. Rev. John Turner officiated. Given in marriage by her father, the youthful bride was a charming picture in a street-length dress of heavenly blue sheer over taffeta, with a lace inset yoke of the same shade and a matching blue velvet flowered hat and veil. Her accessories were white and she wore a corsage bouquet of pink rosebuds and mauve sweet peas. Attending the bride were Miss Jean Adams and Miss Grace Adams, their dresses being rose pink and beige, respectively, similarly styled with deep frill-edged yokes. Their accessories were pink. Both wore corsage bouquets of pink carnations, mauve stocks and sweet peas. Sgt. Eugene McLeod, R.C.A. was groomsman, and ushers were Mr. Richard Hall and Mr. William Jones. During the signing of the register, the hymn "O Perfect Love" was sung by Rev. Alfred S. Lord, accompanied by Mr. John Smith, who also played the wedding music. As the bridal party left the church, the Life Boys, of which the groom was a former member, under the direction of Capt. Baxter, formed a smart guard of honor. For a reception held at the home of the bride's parents, Russell Street, the bridal couple were assisted in receiving the guests by their respective parents. The supper table was covered with an ecru lace cloth and centred with the three-tiered cake made by the bride's mother. For a honeymoon on the Mainland, the bride donned a coat of old gold, with matching hat and brown accessories. The out-of-town guests included Mrs. G. H. Osgerby, Burnaby, and Mrs. Frank Kerry and Miss Eunice Hopkins, Vancouver.

Bilingual Plays Delight Enthusiastic Audience

While English and French joined in heroic combat against a common enemy once more on the soil of France yesterday, their compatriots in Victoria joined hands in a first-class entertainment given at the Little Theatre last night in aid of the little children of France.

From the stirring singing of the "Marseillaise" at the opening to the measured beat of "God Save the King" at the end, there was an atmosphere of national friendliness that added a special quality to the entertainment. Two English plays, "Quality Street" and "Appointment at Midnight," and one French play, "Un Quartier Tranquille," were presented by a cast of top-ranking actors under professional direction.

The French-Canadian Club, l'Alliance France Libre, and the Victoria Little Theatre sponsored the entertainment, which was under the distinguished patronage of His Honor Lieut.-Governor W. C. Woodward and Mrs. Woodward. Mme. L. G. d'Estrube told the guests of the fund which is being collected for the children of France, to be turned into milk and vitamin concentrates to be distributed through the hands of the Red Cross Society.

"Your individual dollars will travel far and straight over there intact as you gave them, since all expenses for these two evenings are being met entirely by French people who have merely done their duty," she explained. "France has desperately and heroically worked to free herself with her underground and prepared the road for your men," she added.

J. M. Barrie's "Quality Street," directed by Elizabeth C. Smith and Audrey St. Denys Johnson, was the first delightful one-act play. Mrs. St. Denys Johnson took the role of Susan Throssel; Nora Garvin played Phoebe Throssel, while R. Jervis-Reid enacted the part of Valentine Brown.

The French comedy, "Un Quartier Tranquille," was under the direction of Mme. d'Estrube, and the players were brilliant city students of French and French performers. The cast included Gegmaine Tremblay, Iva Lisicka, Francette d'Estrube, Irene Goguillon Kathleen Baker and Rebecca Hobbins.

The final play, "Appointment at Midnight," was a dramatic bit done with fine emotional restraint. Noel Cusack gave a memorable performance as the high-strung daughter. Muriel Thompson and Grace Tuckey were clever troupers, while Elizabeth Smith gave a fine performance as the mother, and Edith Gibson, who was responsible for the splendid direction, also took the part of the mysterious illusionist. The latter also designed the circus costumes.

Major L. Bullock-Webster praised the work of the performers and of Mme. d'Estrube and her corps of admirable associates. "This evening will be well remembered by all, both for this delightful entertainment and because it is the evening of 'D' Day, long anticipated by us all," he said.

Reminding mothers and wives here that in France other mothers and wives needed help for their needy children, he urged that help be given. Caen, the centre of heavy fighting, he said he remembered as a quiet old capital of Normandy. Donations may still be sent to the Canadian Red Cross, in care of Mme. d'Estrube, for "The Children of France Fund." The performance will be repeated tonight at the Little Theatre on Rockland Avenue.

Appeal Made to Graduate Nurses Not Fully Employed

"So acute is the need for graduate nurses in general hospitals, sanitoria and mental hospitals that the Canadian Nurses' Association and the National Selective Service are making a special appeal during June to all graduate nurses not now fully employed in nursing." This announcement was made yesterday by Miss Marion Lindeburgh, president of the Canadian Nurses' Association.

The situation, serious for some time, is becoming more critical as the vacation season approaches. If nurses at present on full-time hospital duty are to be granted the vacations they have earned and urgently need, nurses at present unemployed or employed at other work must respond to the appeal to take on at least part-time employment in the hospitals.

Hospitals are at present so seriously understaffed that many have had to close entire wards or discontinue certain types of treatment. This means that those who are ill are having to wait for admission to hospitals and, even after admission, cannot receive treatments which may be vitally important to their health.

The shortage is most acute in sanatoria, mental hospitals, and smaller general hospitals, but there is also a forty-per cent shortage of qualified public health nurses.

Many Canadian sanatoria are having to refuse immediate admission to men and women who are known to be suffering from tuberculosis. The condition of the sufferers becomes much more serious during the period of several months which must elapse before they can obtain admission to the sanatorium, and, consequently, when they are admitted, they must remain for years instead of months.

Many mental hospitals fear that special treatments which have proven effective in curing mental disease may have to be discontinued.

APPEAL IS URGENT

An urgent appeal is made to nurses doing private-duty nursing. To the latter group it is pointed out that, whereas on private-duty the nurse relieves the suffering of only one patient, on general duty in a hospital she may minister to six or eight. In this connection, the general public is urged not to request the services of a private-duty nurse unless such services are absolutely essential.

Nurses in the above three groups are urged to return to full-time general duty nursing, or, if this is impossible, to part-time nursing. Nurses will be paid for even part-time daytime or evening services. All nurses not at present using their training to the full limit of their capacity for the relief of the sick in Canada are urgently requested to apply immediately to the local National Selective Service office or to the local registry conducted by the Registered Nurses' Association.

BRIGHTER THAN ANY OF THEM—BAR NONE! Or, like the movie stars, you can have chipped or broken teeth recapped. So watch children's teeth carefully. Visit the dentist regularly. School Children Give Home to Orphan Owls

IT isn't every nest of young screech owls that have for their foster parents two anxious and tender school children. But such is the case of the young trio of baby owls pictured above. The young people holding them are Marie and Louis Maggiora, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Maggiora, Feltham Road. Both are students of Mount Douglas High School.

The birds were found by Louis nesting in a hollow stub standing in the backyard of the house. The birds have become quite tame and feed regularly on meat offered by hand. Louis plans to rear the birds until they can look after themselves. The natural food of screech owls in this district is mice, and the birds are deserving of their protection.

8:00 a.m., 10:30 a.m., 12:30 p.m., 6:00 p.m., 10:00 p.m.

In addition CJVI broadcasts a one-minute news resume every hour, on the hour, from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., and a five-minute summary at 11 p.m.

B.B.C. broadcasts direct from London at 9 a.m. and 1:15 p.m. daily over CJVI.

CJVI Scoops All Networks

Victorians were among the first listeners in North America to hear the announcement of "D-Day," both the Berlin report and the Allied headquarters confirmation.

When the first dispatch was received in the CJVI newsroom, seconds after its release overseas, Manager M. V. Cheanut immediately put into action an invasion coverage plan worked out weeks before. The plan functioned so well that, in the early hours of Tuesday, dial-twisters heard other stations interrupting their programmes to broadcast bulletins which had been heard over CJVI several minutes before. This happened time and time again.

The explanation is simple. All invasion flashes and bulletins are broadcast directly from the CJVI teletype as they are printed, without even the slight delay of removing them from the machine. The teletype is tuned to 60 words a minute, which means that radios tuned to 1480 on the dial carry invasion news in less than a second from the time it is received on this continent.

Commencing the 24-hour invasion broadcast schedule at midnight on Monday, Announcers Vern Groves, George Walton, Jack Kyle and Harry Wiebe carried on with sandwiches, coffee and enthusiasm to bring listeners speedy reports from the CJVI newsroom plus special overseas transmissions and addresses by Allied leaders.

Dawn found Announcer Bob Willett reading the breakfast news direct from the teletype as bulletins were still coming in thick and fast and no chances were taken on any delay in reporting the news.

This special invasion coverage, 24 hours daily, will be continued indefinitely so that CJVI listeners will get all the news of the greatest military operation in history.

Other star attractions are James Melton, popular star of radio, concert and opera; Nathan Milstein, virtuoso of the violin; Richard Crooks, tenor star of the Metropolitan Opera; Mischel and Jan Cherniavsky, renowned 'cellist and pianist; Alexander Kipnis, bass-baritone Metropolitan Opera, and the Philadelphia Opera Co. in a lavish production of "The Merry Widow."

At the Theatres

ATLAS THEATRE Seven new songs now enjoying hit parade popularity are played by Jimmy Dorsey and his orchestra in "The Fleet's In," Paramount comedy which ends tonight at the Atlas Theatre, and are sung by many members of the cast, headed by Dorothy Lamour, William Holden and Eddie Bracken.

CADET THEATRE Presenting one of the gayest and funniest stories of any musical picture, crammed with catchy new tunes by the nation's top songsmiths, and enlisting the magic of Frank Sinatra's voice, "Higher and Higher" co-stars the singing sensation with Michele Morgan and Jack Haley. The picture ends tonight at the Cadet Theatre.

CAPITOL THEATRE "Up in Arms," Samuel Goldwyn's sparkling Technicolor production for R.K.O.-Radio, which is at the Capitol Theatre, stars the sensational Broadway comedian Danny Kaye in a riotous musical comedy of an eccentric draftee who turns the army upside down. Dinah Shore, Dana Andrews and Constance Dowling are featured, and the glamorous Goldwyn Girls provide an eye-filling ensemble.

OAK BAY AND PLAZA THEATRES Sabu, the handsome native Indian boy, said Iravatha, said to be the world's largest elephant, are the co-stars in "Elephant Boy," which ends tonight at the Oak Bay and Plaza Theatres. For three decades producers have wanted to make this great Rudyard Kipling adventure story, but Alexander Korda was first to dare the staggering dangers it involved. It is based on the play "Toomai of the Elephants."

"In Our Time" Stars Lupino, Henreid

The Dominion Theatre will present Warner Bros.' new production, "I. Our Time," next Friday. This remarkable love story, clouded with the hardships of current events, takes place in Poland, just at the beginning of the war.

Ida Lupino and Paul Henreid have the leading roles in the production. Also featured are Nancy Coleman, Mary Boland, Victor Francen and Nazimova, who returns to the screen after a long absence. "In Our Time" was directed by Vincent Sherman and produced by Jerry Wald. The original screen story was written by Ellis St. Joseph and Howard Koch.

Great American Play At Royal on Friday

Tickets are now on sale for the great American play "Tomorrow the World," which comes to the Royal Theatre for two nights, Friday and Saturday, June 9 and 10. Victoria will get the same cast that played the Selwyn Theatre, Chicago, for six months and will be the attraction at the Geary Theatre, San Francisco, for five weeks beginning June 25. Paul McGrath and Edith Atwater are featured, and are supported by the greatest kid actors of the theatre, Dickie Tyler and Joan Shepard. The play was produced for entertainment only, even though it does deal with an after-the-war problem.

A Nazi brat is brought into the home of a mid-west college professor and his 11-year-old daughter, and the German boy just about breaks the entire household, which provides an evening of laughs and excitement. The play was staged by Elliott Nugent, famous as a playwright, actor and one of the outstanding directors of both screen and stage. Mr. Nugent is now appearing in the season's Broadway hit, "The Voice of the Turtle."

A rocking chair is not helpful in climbing the ladder of success.

According to Culbertson - - - -

It is not unusual for an expert declarer to foresee, from the moment the dummy goes down on the table, that a throw-in play will probably be both vital and feasible eight or 10 tricks later. For example:

West, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ K J 10
♥ A 9 8 3
♦ A K 7
♣ K 7 5

WEST
♠ A Q 6
♥ Q 10 4
♦ Q 10 9
♣ A Q J 6

EAST
♠ 9 5 4 3
♥ 5
♦ 8 6 5 3
♣ 10 9 4 2

SOUTH
♠ 8 7 2
♥ K J 7 6 3
♦ J 4 2
♣ 8 3

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 NT	Double	Pass	2 ♥
Pass	3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

West's penalty double was not sound, but he already had marked himself with virtually every missing honor by bidding the no trump, so at least the double did not reveal anything that the declarer would not have suspected, anyway.

West led the ace and queen of clubs. The king won and South immediately ruffed dummy's last club, then led a spade. West put up the ace and led back the spade six. Declarer needed the finesse against the queen, so he took it, and the 10 held. He then cashed the ace and king of hearts and the spade king, thus completing the stripping of black cards from the North-South hands, and followed up the excellent idea by throwing West in with the heart queen.

Obviously, West was now "stuck." If he exited with a club, declarer would discard a diamond from either hand while ruffing in the other, so West led a low diamond on the correct analysis that the only hope was to find East with the jack. South, however, had that invaluable card and of course he let the lead come up to his own hand.

How It Started

"JUST FOR A SCRAP OF PAPER"

Notorious indictment of blunted sensibility and dulled conscience, "just for a scrap of paper" made the headlines about 30 years ago upon its utterance by Theobald von Bethman Hollweg, German Chancellor.

When England, on August 4, 1914, announced it would stand by its guarantee of Belgium, in accordance with its obligation under the Treaties of 1839 and 1870, the German Chancellor called upon Sir William Edward Goschen, the British Ambassador at Berlin.

Emphasizing his nation's surprise and resentment at Britain's decision, he urged:

"Just for a word—neutrality—a word which in wartime has so often been disregarded, just for a scrap of paper—Great Britain is going to make war."

Old stuff—it's true—but we are now again engaged in a fight for our lives and principles—sacrificing our treasure and the careers of our beloved—dedicated to the proposition that no group of brigands will ever again have the temerity to laugh off an agreement between nations to preserve peace on earth as "just a scrap of paper."

JOAN ELLIS REMEMBERED

NEW YORK, June 6 (AP) — Joan Ellis, 22-year-old British teletype operator who sent the false flash three days ago reporting the European invasion was happily remembered by newspaper editors when "D" Day finally arrived. Many American editors sent cables telling her not to worry about her mistake.

Glancing Over Sport—

By JOE DELAHUNTY

THE DAY'S ROUNDUP

The sports world throughout Canada and the United States observed "D" Day yesterday by calling off the daily baseball games, horse racing meets, an important fight in the East and other events. Only ball league going through with its regular scheduled fixtures was the Coast circuit, the rest deciding to pay tribute to the long-awaited day and one of the most important in the history of warfare, the invasion of German-controlled European countries by Canadian, British and American fighting forces. The stadiums, playing fields, race tracks and boxing rings on the continent were vacant for the day, one which will be remembered for a long, long time to come . . . Local ball officials will observe invasion day today by cancelling this evening's game between V.M.D. and the Army, a fine gesture on their part, to say the least . . . Keep your eye on a young speed demon from the University School at this afternoon's inter-high track and field meeting at the Victoria High grounds by the name of Dazell. The boy has speed to burn and was clocked by five timers at last Saturday's school meet at Mount Tolmie in the century dash in :10 1-5. This corner thinks he will be the kid to beat in the sprints . . . A baseball fan phones the desk and says there is something wrong with Sheridan's answer to the diamond problem which appeared in yesterday's column. Well, if that's the case, you can blame it on to this typewriter, for I may have made a mistake in taking it over the phone.

ODDS AND ENDS

R. Ricketts, of the Pin Busters, rolled one of the highest games of fivepins during the past year on the alleys at Gibson's Bowladrome the other evening by finishing up with a neat score of 400. He was just 50 pins from a perfect game. Ricketts started off with two spares, then tossed nine straight strikes and finished off by taking a head pin . . . In the last four games with Portland, Bill Skiff's Seattle Rainiers drew 44,000 fans into the park and are only 10,000 off the record they set in 1939 against Oakland for a six-game series. The Sound City spectators are the most faithful in minor league baseball, whether the team is winning or losing. By the time the campaign is over the Skiffmen will most likely set a new all-time mark for the minors . . . Remember when Just seven years ago the American Davis Cup tennis team won its round from Australia as Don Budge and Gene Mako walloped Jack Crawford and Vivian McGrath in straight sets in the doubles, 7-5, 6-1, 6-8? The U.S. squad captured the challenge round from England . . . Also remember when Baseball's great and beloved first baseman, Lou Gehrig, died three years ago after a two-year fight against a rare disease of the spinal cord? Gehrig had retired from the New York Yankees' line-up after 14 years with the club, during which he established a consecutive game record of 2,130 . . . Several visitors to the city have been making inquiries lately through this sports department about the location of the Royal Athletic Park. Well, just hop on a No. 3 car at the corner of Yates and Douglas, which travels north on Douglas and then east on Pandora, and ask the conductor to toss you off at the corner of Caledonia and Cook and you are within a stone's throw of the entrance to the park.

FROM HERE AND THERE

Golf officials had a puzzler on their hands last Sunday in the Matson Cup tournament when Ernie Brachat blooped his first tee shot into the drain pipe of the pro shop. They didn't know what rule to look up and they weren't going to ask the Gorge Vale shotmaker to climb to the roof to play the ball for the chances are he would have been up there most of the day. Professional Phil Taylor and other officials decided to call it out of bounds, the only decision they could reach under the circumstances . . . Umpires in the Senior Baseball League will have to lay down the law much stronger than they have been lately. For instance, during a recent game a player left the dugout and adjourned to the grandstand to enjoy a smoke with one of the fans, while still another was still puffing away at a fag when he arrived to take up his position in centrefield. Another thing, some of the remarks aimed at the umpires by the coaches, managers and players wouldn't be tolerated in another league. Imagine a fellow like Amby Moran standing for any of that stuff. Why he would toss them out of the game and maybe the park without batting an eye . . . Ron Whalley's decisive defeat at the hands of Hank Ilett the other night at the Armoury in the main event on the boxing programme came as a surprise to many in the building. Whalley entered the ring with the Canadian Army lightweight title dangling from his trunks, but he looked like anything but a champion that evening as Hank pounded him all the place. Wonder if Ron was in condition or figured he had a cinch win in the making as soon as the bell sounded? . . . This new pitcher the Navy have, Vin Crosato, has plenty of speed, in fact, most fans think that he smokes them over faster than Tommy Musgrave, and the V.M.D. chucker has lots of zip when he is bearing down. Crosato had some pro offers before enlisting two years ago.

Pat Bay Airmen Blank Tire Club

Score 12-0 Victory in Senior Fastball Game—Navy Loses to New R.C.A.F. Nine

It was a big night for the R.C.A.F. fastball teams as they swept through both games of the Lower Island Senior League double-header last night at Athletic Park. In the first game, the R.C.A.F. T.O.T.U., a new entry in the league, defeated the Navy 7-4 in an exhibition game, taking the place of the Army, who were unable to field a team. In the second game the Airmen put a halt to Wally Smith's Douglas Tire nine by running roughshod over them with a 12-0 victory.

By virtue of their win the Flyers take over the top spot in the league standing, with the Tiremen dropping back to the second slot.

Playing airtight ball in the field and packing a lot of power at the plate, the Pat Bay boys scored in every inning except the last two against the Tires and were never headed. They hit the pill for 12 safe base knocks and never had an error charged against them.

Leung, Chinese pitcher, started on the mound for the losers, with Lim behind the plate, forming a Chinese battery, but it just wasn't his night as the winners got to him for 11 hits, two walks, and he struck out one before being relieved by Book after two were out in the fourth with four runners crossing the plate. Book went the rest of the game, giving up one run and one hit.

Degrow was on the slab for the Airmen and turned in a good job by giving only seven hits that were kept well scattered, giving one base on balls and four went down swinging.

The Tiremen had the bags loaded with nobody out in the last half of the third, but failed to push a runner across the plate.

A heated argument took place during the instance when a runner was thrown out at home on an attempted bunt that was fielded by the first baseman and to the catcher for the putout. Manager Smith claimed the ball was foul but Umpire Art Smith, behind the plate, ruled it fair. Peace was finally restored and everybody parted best of friends.

Hank Greenberg (not the famous former Detroit Tiger first baseman), Air Force catcher, got the longest clout of the game by socking out a circuit blow in the third frame between centre and left field with one man aboard.

Score by innings:

Navy	030 001 0 — 4
R.C.A.F. T.O.T.U.	340 009 x — 7

Batteries — Graham, Ross and Jackson; Shore and Kelley.

R.C.A.F.	232 410 0—12
Tires	000 000 0— 0

Batteries — Degrow and Greenberg; Leung, Book and Lim, Travis.

WOMEN'S GAMES ARE RUN OFF

Racing around the bases for 35 runs in the first two innings, 14 in the opening frame and 21 in the next, Victoria Box and Paper girls' team hung up one of the highest scoring games in recent years by trimming Boeing Aircraft, 50-4. The fixture which stole the spotlight was between Unitys and Sports Club, the latter finally winning the decision, 5-4. A run in the last of the ninth decided the battle for the young club coached by Wally Yeamans.

Roosevelt Tells U.S. of Progress

WASHINGTON, June 6 (CP). — President Roosevelt, in a broadcast to the United States tonight said the great Allied liberation assault on Europe had met "with success thus far."

The President included this report in brief prefatory remarks before asking Americans to join with him in prayer that the Allies may prevail over the enemy and build a "sure peace."

Recalling his speech last night on the liberation of Rome, he said he knew at that moment Allied troops were embarked on a "greater operation" and that it had "come to pass with success thus far."

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

The Most Costly Wives in the World—The Sabeu women of Manipur, India, are the most costly wives in the world. They are bought from the father, as is customary in the East. But the purchase price must be paid every year anew. If the husband fails to pay the annual purchase price (renewal), his wife is lost to him, and she may be resold to another male. She is never fully "paid up," and one year's failure in payment will result in the woman being replevined by members of her family.

Many Home Runs Hit

Ninety Drives in Last Seven Days

(By The Associated Press)

Major league pitchers took to the storm cellars after counting up 90 home runs during the last seven days and noting the new menace to their trade in renovated Braves field in Boston.

Since President Bob Quinn moved the right-field fence back 20 feet two weeks ago to help the left-handed hitters, 22 round-trippers have sprouted where only four grew before.

Fifty-one homers have been lifted into the New York Polo Grounds stands in the first seven weeks, almost half as many as were belted all last season when 115 were recorded. Of the 51, exactly 38 were clouted in the Giants' two-week home stand against the Western clubs.

Although the Yankees no longer have their murder's row of yore, 28 homers have been belted at the stadium, 14 each by the Yanks and the visitors. The fourth highest park in home-run production is Briggs Stadium in Detroit, where 21 have been authored.

Strangely enough, while the American League clubs have hammered 20 round-trippers at Philadelphia's Shibe Park, the National Leaguers have been able to collect but seven low for the circuit. Washington's spacious acres have yielded only three.

The hitters have found Sportsman's Park in St. Louis easy picking with a total of 33 homers, but that represents every-day duty with both the Cards and Browns using the field.

BROWNS SCORE VICTORY

ST. LOUIS, June 6 (CP). — St. Louis Browns of the American League defeated Navy Wings of Lambert Field, St. Louis, 10-1, in an exhibition baseball game today.

Tonight's Game In Senior Ball Loop Cancelled

In keeping with "D" Day sport cancellations across Canada, officials of the Victoria Baseball Association last night announced the cancellation of tonight's McGavin Cup baseball fixture at Royal Athletic Park.

Next regular senior baseball game at Royal Athletic Park will be played Friday evening with the Royal Canadian Navy meeting the Eagles. Game time will be 6:30 o'clock.

Ed Carnett Is Bat Star

Former Rainier Hitting for .373

NEW YORK, June 6 (CP). — Eddie Carnett, of Tulsa, today led 13 survivors of baseball's draft along the glory road to major league stardom with his fancy play and timely hitting as part-time Chicago White Sox first baseman.

Organized baseball annually selects the top minor league talent for promotion to the big show on a "pick your man . . . last shall be first" basis. Carnett was one of 16 drafted in Chicago last November.

When Hal Trosky was sidelined two weeks ago, Manager Jimmy Dykes pulled Carnett in from the outfield to play first base. He sports a .373 average and has banged out nine hits in the last four games to spark the Sox to their six-game win streak.

Bill Skiff made the 28-year-old Carnett over from a pitcher to an outfielder at Seattle last year. Carnett is the star of the 1944 crop.

Appeal Is Made For Cricket Bats

An appeal has been made to Alderman W. H. Davies by the cricketers of the Royal Navy for some bats, the only part of the game's equipment they are badly in need of at the present moment. Anyone who has an old bat which is not in use may drop it into the office of the Victoria Realty Company, Broad Street, and Mr. Davies will forward it to the Old Country players.

He who brings ridicule to bear on truth finds in his hand a blade without a hilt.

He's Safe at Home

SEATTLE, June 6 (CP). — Player-Manager Dolph Camilli led Oakland to a 5 to 2 victory over Seattle tonight in a 13-inning Pacific Coast Baseball League game.

Victoria Officer With Signal Corps

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY INVASION FORCES, June 6 (CP). —The Signal Corps network for the second front attack was as complicated as an income tax return. An officer who was in on the high Canadian planning was Capt. H. S. Hamilton, of Winnipeg.

Maj. Glen Lockwood, of Calgary, was with an infantry unit in the training.

Capt. Taft McFetridge, of Winnipeg, was a paymaster on a formation headquarters.

There also were Maj. K. S. Osle, Vancouver and Victoria; Capt. W. S. Steven, Regina; Capt. G. T. Clarke, Port William, and Capt. B. G. Wilson, Winnipeg.

Capt. Pat Styles, of North Battleford, Sask., was a signal officer with headquarters. Capt. C. J. Radcliffe, of Regina, was on staff.

Threaten Action

VANCOUVER, June 6 (CP). — "Drastic action" was threatened by a meeting of Local 144 of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen here tonight unless consideration is given their request to raise their rate of pay to equal Eastern American rates.

The railwaymen said that they requested the War Labor Board last July for consideration of the wage negotiations and date for a hearing was set at September 5. The board finally met in May of this year, but nothing has been done, they said.

Various Sports Observe Invasion

Stadiums and Fields Pay Tribute to "D" Day By Canceling Races, Baseball and a Fight

NEW YORK, June 6 (CP). — Sports tribute to "D" Day was the solemnity of almost absolute quiet today in its stadiums and fields.

Only Delaware State Park and Bay Meadows of the larger racing plants operated, while the Pacific Coast League was the only baseball circuit among the majors and top minors to do full-scale business.

Fights, including the 10-round affair between Sammy Angott and Ike Williams at Philadelphia, also were set back.

The racing industry, which announced plans to close on "D" Day two weeks ago when President Roosevelt suggested that citizens go to their homes and churches on invasion day, quickly fell into line.

New York, Chicago, Boston and Detroit turf plants canceled their programmes early, followed by Pascoag Park in New England, Charlestown in West Virginia, Ascot Park and River Downs in Ohio, Montreal's Kings Park and the Old Country Trotting Association at Westbury, N.Y.

Delaware Park, where the jockeys delayed the start of the first race for 20 minutes by refusing to accept mounts, increased its war bond distribution to horsemen by 50 per cent. Bay Meadows contributed its day's profits to war charities.

Both scheduled major league contests, night affairs at Pittsburgh and Brooklyn, were switched to other dates. The two games listed in the International League, whose president, Frank Shaughnessy, said he had "two sons over there and I am not much interested in baseball today," also were postponed.

American Association games at Kansas City and Milwaukee went unplayed but St. Paul and Minneapolis made plans to be hosts to Toledo and Columbus, respectively.

The smaller minors also were dotted with cancellations.

Promoter Herman Taylor said the Angott-Williams bout would be held tomorrow night, weather permitting, in Shibe Park. A Buffalo card was also set back a day. The latter postponement followed orders of Gen. John J. Phelan, New York State Athletic Commission chairman, ordering all Empire State rings to remain dark tonight.

An all-star soccer game at the Polo Grounds, where the entire gate receipts went to the Red Cross, was played.

Cricket Game Carded Today

Royal Navy and Spencers will clash in another Wednesday cricket match this afternoon at Beacon Hill at 2:30. To date these clubs have had three interesting fixtures and the midweek fans are promised another today. Spencers will line up as follows: Bart, Shrimpton, Harper, Oakman, Baker, Coleman, Fletcher, Nixon, Napper, Gardiner and Dyment.

A training session of the Eagles baseball team will be held this evening at the Victoria High School grounds at 6 o'clock. All players are asked to turn out.

Bombers in Night Raid

LONDON, June 7 (Wednesday) (CP).—A force of R.A.F. bombers, described as in "great strength," headed southward from the East Coast of Britain last night.

There was no immediate indication of their targets, but it was probable that the invasion path of the Allied landing forces was getting a night-time going-over.

APPARENTLY ENGAGED IN HEAVY FIGHTING

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, June 6 (CP).—Flying unchallenged in their third sweep of the day over the new Allied beachhead on the shores of France, Canadian fighter pilots returned tonight to report Allied troops apparently engaged in heavy fighting around Caen, 10 miles from the sea, while other freshly-landed troops penetrated inland from the beaches.

The Canadian fighters have been flying since early this morning. They were wished "good hunting" by Group Capt. W. R. Macbrien, of Ottawa, commander of a Canadian fighter sector, but the only targets they found were those on the ground. Only one German plane was sighted throughout the day. It was off in the distance and was not engaged.

Back from their latest flight, the Canadian flyers said fires were seen at Caen and that it appeared tanks were converging on that town from either side—Germans from the south and Allied armor from the north. One flyer said it looked as if fierce fighting were going on around the town.

During their unchallenged flights over the beachhead they could see the troops on the shore, and Sqdn. Ldr. "Dal" Richards, of Montreal, said they seemed "to be having a comparatively easy time."

"We could see patrols moving out and not meeting much opposition," he said.

The City of Oshawa squadron was the first back from the beaches in the morning.

Group Capt. Macbrien personally led the first sortie of three Canadian fighter squadrons, and in the sections with him were Wing Cmdr. Lloyd Chadburn, of Aurora, Ont.; Sqdn. Ldr. R. A. Buckham, of Vancouver, and Sqdn. Ldr. Walter Conrad, of Richmond, Ont.

SLIGHT LOSS

NEW YORK, June 6 (AP).—Merrill Mueller, N.B.C. reporter, tonight quoted the Allied Naval Commander in Chief, Admiral Sir Bertram Ramsay, as saying the Naval Command had lost only light combat vessels in the initial invasion operations in contrast to a 10 per cent. over-all loss which had been expected. He said that Admiral Ramsay termed the initial operation in putting troops ashore 100 per cent successful and said the light combat vessels lost did not affect troop landings.

STALIN CONGRATULATES

LONDON, June 6 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill received today this congratulatory message from Premier Stalin of Russia on the Allied liberation of Rome: "I congratulate you on the great victory of the Allied Anglo-American forces in the taking of Rome. This news has been greeted in the Soviet Union with great satisfaction."

RECEIVED BY POPE

VATICAN CITY, June 6 (AP).—More than 150 soldiers, some of them Canadians, were received by Pope Pius today in a surprise audience. The soldiers had gathered before St. Peter's when word came out that the Pontiff would see them and the group was led into the Consistory Hall, where Catholics and Protestants alike knelt as the holy father blessed them.

PETER TELLS WHAT HE SAW AND IS LAUGHED AT

The very first chance Peter Rabbit got he slipped up to the Old Orchard at break of day so as to be on hand when the feathered folk awoke. He was anxious to tell how he had seen Sooty the Swift fall down the chimney of Farmer Brown's house. He felt sure that no one else had seen it and so he was sure it would be news—sad news, but news just the same. You know, there is no one more eager to tell news than Peter Rabbit. Then, too, Peter wanted to ask questions. He wanted to find out more about Sooty, and he knew that no one would know as much about him as his feathered comrades and neighbors.

The first person Peter met was Jenny Wren. Peter's eyes brightened. Jenny Wren was the one bird of all those living in the Old Orchard from whom he could get the most information. You see, Jenny Wren is a great gossip, and what she doesn't know about her neighbors and their affairs is hardly worth knowing. At least that is what she thinks.

"Oh, Jenny Wren, do you know what has happened to Sooty the Swift?" cried Peter as soon as Jenny was near enough.

"No," cried Jenny, hurrying to a branch just over Peter's head. "I didn't know anything had happened. What has?"

"The most dreadful thing!" replied Peter. "The other evening, when I was watching him, he flew over Farmer Brown's house. Then something happened to him. I don't know what it was, but he couldn't seem to fly any more. He just fluttered his wings as if he couldn't use them any more and dropped straight down. The worst of it is he was right over the chimney and he fell right down inside it. I waited and waited, but he didn't come out again. He's probably lying down there now dead. Isn't it dreadful? And what do you suppose could have happened to him up there in the air?"

Jenny Wren stared very hard at Peter, as if to make sure that he was in earnest. When she saw that he was she turned her head away with a queer little gasp and began to shake all over. At first Peter thought that she was crying.

"It's dreadfully sad, isn't it?" said he.

Jenny Wren shook harder than ever. "Excuse me," said she. "The news has quite overcome me. I'll be back in a minute. The other birds ought to know it and I want them to hear it right from you because you are the one who saw it happen." the Swallow, Chippy the Sparrow, Goldie the Oriole, Drummer the Woodpecker and many more. "Peter has some sad news to tell," said she and turned away her head.

"What is it?" cried all the birds together.

She flew away, but in a very short time she was back with all the other birds of the Old Orchard. Welcome Robin, Winsome Bluebird, Skimmer

So Peter Told His Sad Story All Over Again

So Peter told his sad story all over again, and he felt very important, as most people do who bear news, whether it be bad or good. As Peter finished, one by one the birds turned away their heads and began to shake all over, just as Jenny Wren had done. He had expected that the other birds would feel badly when they learned what had happened to Sooty, but he had not expected that they would feel as badly as they seemed to. "They must have thought a great deal of Sooty," thought Peter, and his own eyes filled with tears.

"Chitter-chitter-chitter-chit-chit! What is going on here?" If Peter had stepped on something red hot he couldn't have jumped higher or further. "Chitter-chitter-chitter-chit-chit! What is all this fuss about?"

There could be but one voice like that. Peter looked up. Overhead, circling, diving, racing was a little dark bird with narrow, stiff wings. It was Sooty the Swift. There could be no doubt about it, for there is no one at all like him. Hastily Peter glanced at his neighbors. They were still shaking, but it wasn't with grief. No, sir, it wasn't with grief. They were shaking with laughter!

"Oh, you stupid, stupid Peter!" cried Jenny Wren when she could get her voice. "Sooty was just going to bed when you saw him. He lives in that chimney. Wherever have your eyes been that you never have seen him go down there before? Oh dear, oh dear, was there ever such a joke?"

And all the other birds agreed that there never was.

Rommel and Montgomery Battle Again

AT GENERAL MONTGOMERY'S HEADQUARTERS, June 6 (CP) — Gen. Montgomery and Field Marshal Rommel—chief protagonists in the campaign which put the Germans out of Egypt and Tripolitania—are at grips again in a decisive battle in France.

As the Allied invasion of France was launched, it was disclosed today that the commander of the Allied invasion ground forces held an interview with 200 war correspondents on May 15—22 days ago—in which he said: "I think Rommel will commit himself on the beaches."

He told the correspondents—British, Canadian and American among them—"I have absolute and complete certainty in the outcome."

Gen. Montgomery said he foresaw bitter fighting on the beaches because he had come to know Rommel as an impulsive commander who preferred to reach a quick decision rather than engage in a slow slugging match.

"He will try to knock us back into the sea. He is a disrupter and to disrupt the invasion he will try to hit us early."

With a slight smile, he said he considered it a compliment that the Germans had placed Rommel in command in the west. He thought the former Afrika Corps commander would try to spoil the landing from the start and would have tanks and guns right up on the coast.

The German soldier is still an excellent fighter, the commander said, but he felt the German general staff is losing its grip, possibly because it has been fighting a defensive battle for the last year.

In war it is not permitted twice to err.

Finance—Commerce—Markets

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, June 6 (AP).—The big invasion news today found financial markets well prepared and stocks, particularly motors and other industrials with good peace prospects, pushed upward in the fastest session since last November.

Shares were subjected to moderate selling at the start but bidders soon took control and, with automotive favorites turning over in blocks of 1,000 to 5,000, gains at the best ranged from fractions to better than a point, with peaks for the year or longer numerous. A little profit cashing trimmed quotations in most cases at the close. Scattered rails, aircrafts and liquors ended on the offside.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up .2 of a point at 53.1, with the rail composite down .1 of a point. Transfers totaled 1,788,760 shares, largest since November 7, 1943, and compared with 858,990 Monday.

DOW JONES AVERAGES

Dow Jones averages closed Tuesday as follows:

Thirty industrials, 142.21, up .59.
Twenty rails, 39.80, off .05.
Fifteen utilities, 23.01, up .03.
Total sales, 1,788,760, shares.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, June 6 (AP).—The grain market ended its indecision on the invasion news near the close today. Final trading pushed some wheat prices up as much as 2 cents, while some rye contracts scored gains of 2 1-2 cents.

The wheat market displayed a strong tone late in the trading. Scattered buying found only small offerings. A nervous rye market also was stronger, with some traders uncertain as to how the opening of a Western front would affect demand. Oats moved upward with wheat on light offerings.

Wheat closed 1 1-4 to 2 cents higher than yesterday's finish, July $1.62 3-8 to $1.62 1-2; oats were 5-8 to 1 1-4 higher, July 75 5-8; rye closed 2 to 2 1-2 higher, July $1.09 1-4; barley was 1-4 to 1-2 higher, July $1.21.

Winnipeg Grain

WINNIPEG, June 6 (CP).—Rye futures traded erratically today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange with prices closing 2 3-4 to 2 5-8 higher.

News of the Allied invasion of France boosted futures 4 1-2 cents in early trading but gains were later erased when New York and Chicago interests turned to the selling side.

A brief flurry of buying near the close sent futures to their closing levels.

July rye closed at $1.09 1-4 and October $1.08 1-2 to $1.08 5-8.

Traders estimated wheat export business with the United Kingdom during the day at 300,000 bushels of Nos. 1 and 2 Northern.

Ottawa House Members Sing French Anthem for Invasion

OTTAWA, June 6 (CP).—Amid an uproar of desk-thumping in the Commons today, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said that Canadian invasion forces had gained their initial objective and were making good progress.

Mr. King said it was not desirable at this time to give details of [illegible] posed that the offensive launched today will not be followed by other offensives in other parts of Europe."

He added:

"I am happy to be able to inform the House that official word has already come to the effect that our men have successfully achieved their first objective and are making good progress."

When Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader, and John Blackmore, Social Credit leader, completed short statements, Maurice Lalonde (L., Labelle), rose and addressed the House in French. Then he picked up a sheet of paper from his desk and glancing around the House started singing the French National Anthem, "La Marseillaise." As he sang, fellow members stood up, some singing in French and others in English.

The revolutionary song was taken up in the galleries where spectators rose to their feet, some humming the air, others joining in the words.

When the anthem ended the members broke into "God Save the King" and again those in the galleries joined in.

Mr. King had asked that the "Hearts of all in Canada today be filled with silent prayer" for the success of the operations begun in France by Canadian and other forces.

The Prime Minister read to the House the first announcement from Allied headquarters, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's order of the day, Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's message to Canadian troops and excerpts from Prime Minister Churchill's speech to the British House of Commons as well as his own radio broadcast. At such an early stage, he said, there was little more information to be given.

"The fact that an Allied landing has taken place on the Continent is of itself a great feat," said Mr. King.

Both local and general counter-attacks were to be expected, however, and it was important not to over-rate minor successes, he said.

"It is not to be supposed that the offensive launched today will not be followed by other offensives in other parts of Europe," said Mr. King.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader, said there was no division of opinion in the House today as attention was riveted on the progress of the invasion.

John Blackmore, Social Credit leader, said this was a time for prayer and he said the feeling of the House was one of supplication to the Almighty for the success of our arms and the safety of our forces.

Say Canadian Destroyers in Invasion Fleet

NEW YORK, June 6 (CP).—The Canadian destroyers Sioux and Algonquin were in the Allies' great invasion fleet which smashed at the French Coast today, the B.B.C. said tonight.

The famous British battleship Warspite, which sank seven destroyers in the Norwegian port of Narvik during the German invasion of Norway in 1940, also participated in the attack, the B.B.C. said, along with the battleships Nelson and Romilles and the British cruisers Glasgow, Enterprise and Orion. The United States battleships Nevada, Texas and Arkansas took part, the B.B.C. said.

It was announced in London today that the Nevada, repaired and restored to duty after being badly damaged in the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor December 7, 1940, was among the Allied armada.

NO CONFIRMATION FROM OTTAWA

OTTAWA, June 6 (CP).—No confirmation could be obtained from Canadian naval sources tonight of a report, carried by the British Broadcasting Corporation and heard at New York, that the Canadian destroyers Sioux and Algonquin were in the Allied invasion fleet which smashed at the French coast today.

It was learned, however, that if they were in the action they probably were operating as part of Royal Navy forces.

The Sioux and Algonquin, identical in lines, are built to operate with the largest warships, and have a long operational range. They have a speed of upwards of 36 knots, and in addition to main armament carry two sets of quadruple torpedo tubes, depth charge throwers and "extensive" modern anti-aircraft armament.

Nels Lougheed Dies, Vancouver

VANCOUVER June 6 (CP).—Nels Lougheed, 61, former British Columbia Minister of Lands and a pioneer of British Columbia, died here today. He was a nephew of the late Senator Lougheed, of Calgary.

Born in Clarksburg, Ont., Mr. Lougheed came to British Columbia in 1894. He was chosen Provincial president of the Conservative party at Kamloops convention in 1926.

He alone is not idle who does nothing but he also who might be better employed.

Sound Business Future City Need

Hon. Herbert Anscomb told members of the Municipal Officers' Association of British Columbia, at a dinner last night at the Empress Hotel closing their two-day annual conference, that if the Province's postwar problems were met from a business angle there was nothing to be feared.

Municipal officers, "representa- [illegible] British Columbia's business life," would have the task of seeing that the affairs of the Province were "properly carried on."

Saying that problems would arise for the Province if the Atlantic Charter were universally put into effect, the Minister of Municipal Affairs declared that the Orient's large population would threaten British Columbia's standard of living. He asked what would be the effect on the Province's timber industry, "built up by preference in the British market," if there were no restriction on the sale of timber by, for example, the Soviet Union.

Tourist business in British Columbia would be virtually unlimited after the war, he forecasted. Science would bring about changes in many industries. "We will have to develop secondary industries," he said. New economic standards would have to be established.

E. H. Bridgman, deputy minister, told the delegates that British Columbia municipalities controlled the destinies of 75 per cent of its population, but had less than one-half of one per cent of its area to tax.

He urged the delegates to indicate to their councils that requests made of the Government, if reasonable and for the good of all, would be favorably considered. His department favored maintaining tax rates to provide revenue for postwar funds, and approved borrowing for sound projects.

Col. F. T. Fairey, director of vocational training in British Columbia, said 40,000 men had been government trained in the Province for war service. His main problem now was preparation for re-establishment of returning men. Municipal officers could take part in the Government's training-on-the-job plan by selecting persons suitable for civic officials' duties. Municipalities would receive grants to partly cover the learners' wages.

L. S. Brice, association secretary, toasted the visitors, and Roy Leigh, past president, the ladies. Percy Ward, Provincial Hospitals inspector, and Mrs. M. F. Hunter, respectively, responded.

W. A. Greene, new president, responded to the toast to the association that accompanied Mr. Bridgman's address.

John Joseph Wall Dies at Nanaimo

NANAIMO, June 6.—John Joseph Wall, 64, born in nearby Wellington and a resident of Nanoose Bay for 35 years, died in Nanaimo Hospital. He belonged to the Eagles lodge and is survived by one son, Alfred, Nanoose; two sisters, Mrs. Edna McMurtrie and Mrs. Emma Boyd, Nanaimo; and a brother, Robert Currie, Vancouver.

Plan Control Centre

Plans for the establishment of a regional control centre of Civil Defence were discussed yesterday by Inspector S. F. M. Moodie, in charge of training Civil Defence personnel in Canada and municipal defence heads. Inspector Moodie arrived from Vancouver in the morning.

The planned control centre will embrace all areas of Lower Vancouver Island. A special group of personnel to handle affairs of the branch will be headed by Maj. J. C. MacDonald, it was reported.

Bush Blazes on Lot

A violent bush and grass fire, originating in a vacant lot back of the home of G. A. Weir, 339 Foul Bay Road, burned fiercely for more than three hours yesterday afternoon before the fire department had the flames and smouldering bush under control. The cause of the fire was not learned.

Brave men do not boast nor bluster. Deeds, not words, speak for such.

The Fighting Forces

Air Gunner Graduate

Sergeant Monteith R. McLaren, R.C.A.F., 723 Powderley Avenue, recently was graduated as a wireless air gunner at Lethbridge.

Action in the Sky

"If it had not been for the way Bill handled the controls, we might never have got back," said Sgt. Joe Petsche, D.F.M., speaking of the engagement in which he won the award. The 22-year-old Ville La Salle, Quebec, lad was in his position as mid-upper gunner, and Skipper Flt. Sgt. William Wood, 1161 Old Esquimalt Road, was behind the controls of their Halifax bomber en route home after a mine laying job. Suddenly a rain of cannon shell and machine-gun bullets tore into their aircraft. A Nazi fighter had come up unobserved from underneath and let the Canadian machine have it.

Fire broke out. Flames licked close to the gun position; Petsche crawled to an extinguisher and tried desperately to douse them. The wireless operator came up as soon as possible and lent a hand, and Petsche returned to his gun position while Wood sent the bomber into violent evasive action.

Prisoner in Japan

Word has been received that Signalman Charles M. Keyworth, son of Rev. Thomas Keyworth, formerly of Sidney, is a prisoner of war in a Tokio internment camp. The International Red Cross, through which the information was received, also revealed that Keyworth had been injured recently in a typhoon at Niigata, Japan. The extent of his injuries were not made known. Signalman Keyworth's father is now living at Grand Forks. An uncle and aunt, S. Sgt. and Mrs. Blair, live at 2101 Sutherland Road. Keyworth served with the 5th B.C. Coast Brigade, R.C.A., before going overseas.

Citation Received

Capt. Ronald H. Brown, U.S.A.A.F., a native son of Victoria, has been awarded the D.F.C., American citation, for extraordinary achievement as pilot of his Spitfire.

The citation reads in part: "With great bravery and absolute disregard for personal safety, he led his three Spitfires into an enemy formation of 24 fighter-bombers, completely outmanœuvring and out-fighting them, and, after a sharp engagement, the enemy planes fled towards their base. By his leadership, judgment and devotion to duty, as shown in this and more than 120 successful combat sorties, he has reflected great credit upon himself and the armed forces of the United States."

Capt. Brown arrived home at Claremont, Cal., at the end of May. He had recently participated in battles over Cassino and the Anzio beachhead. Some time ago he received the Air Medal, to which has been added the bronze and silver oak leaf clusters. His father, Lieut. H. Brown, was one of Canada's aces in the last war, and, when the war ended, he moved to the United States and continued flying commercially. At present he holds the rank of squadron leader instructor at an air base in California.

Air Crew Graduates

The following British Columbia men were recent wireless air gunner graduates of No. 8 Bombing and Gunnery School, Lethbridge: Sgt. William C. Colon, Vancouver; Sgt. Jack D. Edmunds, Vancouver; Sgt. Clarence L. Angus, New Westminster; Sgt. S. S. Dixon, New Westminster; Sgt. Thomas G. Slater, Kamloops; Sgt. M. R. McLaren, 723 Powderly Avenue, Victoria; Sgt. A. James Mitchell, Oliver; Sgt. John W. Leary, Vancouver, and Sgt. Gordon M. Shetlard, Hollyburn.

Graduated as navigators from No. 2 Observer School, Edmonton, were: P.O. Robert A. Baldrey, Trail; P.O. Robert J. Harrower, Murrayville; P.O. Weldon B. Penn, New Westminster, and Sgt. Robert E. Small, Vancouver.

Graduated as flying instructors from No. 2 Flying Instructor School, Pearce, Alberta, were: P.O. L. I. Cutler, Nelson; P.O. E. W. Mayers, New Westminster; P.O. S. J. Mayer, Vancouver; P.O. H. J. King, Langley Prairie, and P.O. W. G. Beale, Vancouver.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

OLD PERSON'S HEART

It is because the legs give out that athletes, otherwise strong and fit, must give up their specialties such as baseball, hockey, football, boxing and other sports. While this is a keen disappointment to them it really fits into the scheme of life in that these sports continued toward middle age put too much strain on the heart and blood vessels causing the loss of valuable lives while at their best mentally.

It is this giving up of active sport and continuing the less active sports of golf, volleyball and regular walking that prevents early attacks of coronary thrombosis, our commonest heart ailment.

Fortunately, even when the heart is weak or has been damaged by infection, the use of the drug digitalis enables these individuals to live useful lives for many years.

In an article on "Old Person's Heart" in the Texas State Medical Journal, Dr. J. H. Musser states that drugs are not of supreme importance in the management of the heart that is growing old. In the older person who develops pneumonia, or who has acute bronchitis which may develop into pneumonia, it is an excellent idea to start digitalis promptly.

"The older person slows down his physical activities; he does not drive himself, and his way of living becomes calmer. In this way he avoids straining his heart. Unfortunately he does not go far enough in restraining all his activities." He must rest after meals as the circulation in the heart itself is increased immediately after meals. More attacks of coronary thrombosis occur shortly after eating than at any other time of the day.

Eight hours' rest at night is sufficient as longer rests sometimes upset the rhythm and dynamics of the circulation. Instead of resting too long at night it is preferable to take a nap after meals or in the middle of the day. Mental rest is as important as physical rest.

Emotional excitement and straining at stool should be avoided. "Short trips, a few holes of golf or a little fishing should take the place of longer, more wearing vacations or recreations."

Dr. Musser also warns against retiring from business unless there is some change to other work or interest which can be undertaken immediately.

Iris Talk Given

K. Christiansen addressed members of the Victoria Horticultural Society last night in the City Hall on the iris, tracing its history back to growth in ancient Greece and unfolding the story of the flower in Asiatic and European lands since before the Christian era. It had been grown with success in widely-separated parts of the world, in Japan, in Italy, in England, and from the hot southern climes to the barren North.

Speaking of the cultivation of the iris in this climate, he said that flower enthusiasts had an untold wealth of beauty to be uncovered in their choice of type and variety, there being more than 1,000 variations of the cosmopolitan iris from which to choose.

Towards the close of his talk, Mr. Christiansen passed around a collection of his beautiful irises for inspection.

The Horticultural Society will stage its annual June flower show, featuring roses, at the Crystal Garden, on June 23 and 24. There will be classes for all flowers in bloom at that time.

MARINE and TRANSPORTATION

Amendments Designed to Implement Aviation Policy

OTTAWA, June 6 (CP).—Amendments to the Aeronautics Act designed to carry out the recently announced new Government policy on civil aviation in Canada were introduced tonight in the Commons by Munitions Minister Howe.

As forecast, they provide that no licence for a commercial air service shall be issued to any person "engaged in the transport of goods or passengers for hire or reward by means other than aircraft unless the governor in council is of opinion that it is in the public interest that such a licence be issued."

This clause will effect the intention announced by Mr. Howe last March of requiring the railway companies to separate themselves from Air Services, the C.P.R. from Canadian Pacific Air Lines and the C.N.R. from Trans-Canada Air Lines.

Another clause provides that licences now in effect shall be deemed to be issued under the new legislation, but shall cease to be valid on and after the termination of the war in Europe. That was the deadline announced earlier for separation of railways from air services.

The principal object of the measure is the creation of an air transport board which will consist of three members, appointed for periods of ten years.

TO TAKE OVER LICENSING FUNCTIONS

In addition to taking over the licensing and regulatory functions in respect to aviation now exercised by the Board of Transport commissioners the new board will:

"Subject to the directions of the minister, from time to time make investigations and surveys relating to the operation and development of commercial air services in Canada and relating to such other matters in connection with civil aviation as the minister may direct."

And: "Make recommendations to the minister with reference to any investigation or survey made by it and shall advise the minister in the exercise of his duties and powers under this act in all matters relating to civil aviation."

The minister will be the Minister of Transport or such other minister as may be designated. Mr. Howe now is the designated minister.

Speaking on the resolution preliminary to introduction of the bill, Mr. Howe said advisory functions to be conferred on the proposed Air Transport Board would be "extremely helpful" in bringing about development of Canadian aviation both nationally and internationally.

The resolution was passed and the bill introduced and given first reading.

Beacon Hill Host To City Visitors

Civic dignitaries, their wives and heads of clubs that have contributed to the well-being of the ship by providing comforts for the officers and crew, were guests at a reception aboard H.M.C.S. Beacon Hill, Victoria-built frigate yesterday afternoon.

After welcoming the guests, Lt.-Cmdr. E. T. Simmons, D.S.O., D.S.C., expressed his personal thanks and those of his officers and ship's company to the citizens of Victoria for their many fine gifts, and said: "Although the invasion is under way, we hope to get there in time to be of some help and carry the name of Victoria into active combat against the enemy. I am sure the washing machines and other comforts that you have provided us with will come in handy when we are far away from the luxuries we have known while ashore. We all thank you very much for your kindness to us."

Acting Major Archie Wills responded to the captain's good wishes, and presented the wardroom with a framed picture of Beacon Hill Park, the gift of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, and a brochure outlining the origin of the park name.

The acting mayor stated that today word was received that the H.M.C.S. Swansea, third frigate built on this coast, had distinguished herself by sinking a submarine, and he was sure that H.M.C.S. Beacon Hill would equal or better that fine record. In conclusion he wished the officers and crew members God speed, and said that he knew they would uphold the good record of Victoria.

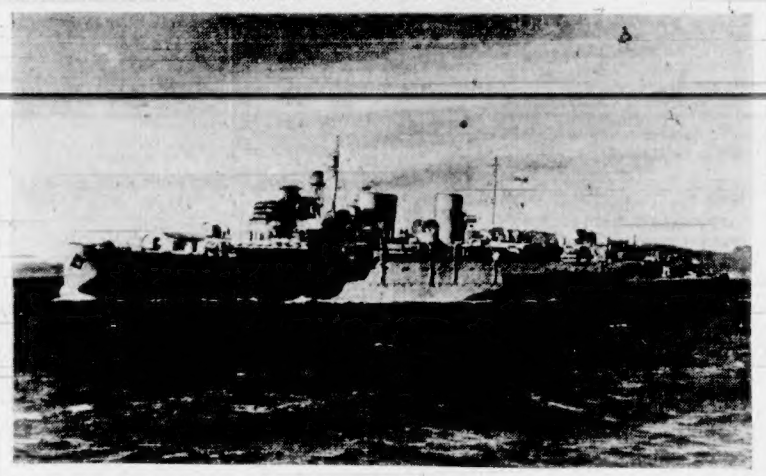
JERSEY CITY, N.J., June 6 (CP).—The Swedish liner Gripsholm, bringing home ill or wounded Canadian and American servicemen, arrived at her dock late today, completing a fourth exchange voyage between North America and Europe.

Aboard are 37 Canadians—36 of them soldiers captured during the Dieppe operation of August, 1942, and one a Canadian naval rating.

Carries Allied Soldiers in Great Assault



H.M.C.S. Prince Henry, Former Auxiliary Cruiser Which Was Converted Into an Infantry Assault Ship, One of the Two Such Victoria Ships Which Carried Allied Troops to the Shores of France in Tuesday's Invasion, According to a Canadian Press Dispatch From London.

Victoria Ships Take Assault Troops to Invasion Shores

In a Canadian Press dispatch from London yesterday, it was disclosed that two ships well known on the Pacific Coast—H.M.C.S. Prince David and H.M.C.S. Prince Henry—were used as infantry assault ships in Tuesday's invasion of the French coast.

H.M.C.S. Prince David and H.M.C.S. Prince Henry were well known on the Pacific Coast, where they formed part of the Canadian National Steamships' coast fleet. When the company inaugurated its service between Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle the David and Henry were used here, but with the abandonment of that service the two ships went to Halifax, N.S., and operated to Bermuda and on special cruises.

Taken over by the naval authorities in 1939, the David and Henry were first converted into auxiliary cruisers, and as such played an important part in the patrol in the Pacific and Atlantic coasts in the early phases of the war.

The vessels were later converted from auxiliary cruisers into invasion ships at a Vancouver shipyard. They were outfitted at Victoria.

Many officers and men from Victoria are numbered among the ship's company of both ships.

CANADA'S CONTRIBUTION NOT DEFINITELY KNOWN

Canada's naval contribution to the invasion was known to have involved hundreds of men and dozens of other ships, but secrecy enveloping many phases of the operation made it difficult to assess the total Canadian contribution.

Somewhere in the seagoing forces working today Canada also had:

Flotillas of large infantry landing craft which have done major work in the Mediterranean. Aboard each ship were roughly 20 officers and men as crew, and they were capable of carrying between 6,000 and 7,000 troops ashore at a time.

Flotillas of motor torpedo boats with crews, totaling something under 1,000 men, whose job is to harry enemy craft, rescue fallen flyers or simply carry out escort duty.

A number of destroyers, adding their 4.7-inch guns to the fire power of the vast Allied fleet.

Somewhere ashore were Canadian naval commandos, charged with keeping land and sea co-operation working.

Eighteen Killed In Plane Crash

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 6 (AP).—Eighteen navy men were killed today and 12 injured when a navy Liberator bomber crashed into structures at the Camp Kearney Auxiliary Air Station on Kearny Mesa.

The 11th Naval District, in announcing the accident, said seven men were seriously injured and five were hospitalized for minor injuries.

Twelve men were aboard the plane, but two of the flyers escaped with serious injuries and a third with minor injuries. The other dead and injured were station personnel working in the area.

The huge four-engined craft crashed while taking off. It exploded and burned as it hit the ground.

Shipbuilders Salute Invasion Armies

A telegram saluting the Canadian forces in the invasion of Western Europe, has been sent to Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, Commander of the Canadian Army in Britain, by the Boilermakers and Iron Shipbuilders' Union of Victoria.

This action was taken at a meeting of aforementioned union, held last night in the Chamber of Commerce hall.

Text of the message reads as follows:

"The membership of the Boilermakers and Iron Shipbuilders' Union of Victoria, in meeting assembled, salutes the gallant men and women in the armed forces on the opening of the Western front. We pledge ourselves to maintain the home and production fronts on a scale to make our boys and girls as proud of us as we are of them."

The telegram was signed by G. S. Culhane, president, and P. H. Eyke, secretary-treasurer.

Blimp Crashes in Search for Plane

VANCOUVER, June 6 (CP).—A United States Navy blimp engaged in aerial reconnaissance over the wreckage of a Royal Canadian Air Force plane on Vancouver Island, crashed yesterday near the scene of the wreck it was investigating. The 11 men aboard, two Royal Canadian Air Force liaison men and nine Americans, escaped uninjured, Western Air Command announced today.

Officials are investigating the possibility of salvaging the blimp, which is totally deflated. It is believed the craft came too close to the ground and was caught in a draught of air. It lies 20 miles southwest of Nanaimo, B.C., near Mount Wimper.

"It was like being gently lowered to earth at the end of an elastic band," one of the airmen aboard the craft said describing the "crash."

Today the 11 men are making their way through the rough bush interior of the Island toward the south forks of the Nanaimo River. Meanwhile, the big observation gasbag hangs limply from the branches of a tall Douglas fir.

War Correspondent Describes Invasion Fleet Putting to Sea

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE INVASION FLEET, June 5 (Delayed) (CP).—The invasion fleet is putting to sea carrying the second front armies to France.

From the top deck of our ship, which was on the Sicily landing and at Salerno, you see ships fanned out over the water wherever you look. There has never been anything like it in history.

Close by are two corvettes and behind them three destroyers. These are the great little ships which with corvettes and frigates and other escort craft will protect this gigantic convoy as it crosses the Channel.

Five hundred yards to port are infantry landing ships packed with assault infantry and engineers, and beyond them flotilla after flotilla of smaller landing ships and landing craft jockeying about to get into position.

Fighter planes patrol overhead and masses of balloons moored on the ships create a barrage curtain over the fleet. Larger warships, too, are with us and we have seen cruisers and monitors moving in our roadstead.

Famous battleships will be in action during the landing.
